

Therapy center building 'tribute to community'

By JACK SCHICHT
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Recently Roger Garlich, director of the Children's Therapy Center, was taking some out-of-town persons on a tour of the Center's new building at 14th and Ingram.

After the tour, Garlich said, they complimented the new facility. But more importantly, Garlich said, they brought up a point which many Pettis County residents often overlook: "They said, 'This building is a tribute to the entire community.'"

"Sometimes we lose sight of the fact that the biggest factor behind the success of the Center has been the community," Garlich said. "The fact that this building exists means that the public has continued to assume a responsibility for those who aren't as fortunate as some of us and who need help... This indeed is their Center."

From noon to 2 p.m. Sunday, local residents will be given an opportunity to tour the new facility and see what their donations have helped build for the past 18 years.

The Sunday open house will highlight this year's annual fund-raising drive for the Center. Saturday and Sunday about 800 volunteers will be canvassing Pettis County asking residents to continue to financially support "their Center."

The Children's Therapy Center remains just one of two such centers in the country which relies solely on donations to keep it operative. No fees are charged the parents or children — or the adults themselves — who receive treatment at the Center.

At the crossroads

"This year represents a crossroads for us," Garlich said. "We're on the threshold of tremendous progress... and we must see whether the public will continue to support the Center. Even though we have this new facility, we're still just getting our feet off the ground with our programs."

Since 1955, when the Center began operations with one teacher and nine children in a frame house near Bothwell Hospital, the organization has grown continually, even surprising many of the original members of the Center's board of directors with its rate of progress.

William Brown, 1102 New England Drive, this year's honorary chairman of the fund-raising drive and one of the original members of the board, recently remarked that the Center's services have been extended "to a wider range of people than we ever originally anticipated."

With the relocation from the basement of Bothwell Hospital to the new building, the Center's operating budget next year will be at an all-time high — about $125,000. Last year the budget was $98,000.

The increased budget, Garlich said, is due in part to the additional costs of maintaining the new building. But the greatest increase in the budget was created by the expansion of services.

Since moving into its building about a month ago, the Center has hired a teacher for the hearing handicapped, a coordinator for adult rehabilitation services, a teacher for a developmental kindergarten, an additional speech therapist and a new office worker. The Sedalia School District is paying for the salaries of some of the new teachers but other costs of the new classes must be paid for out of the Center's budget.

More patients

The Center expects to be able to treat about 75 to 100 more regular patients in the new facility. Also, it will be able to serve more patients who receive periodic treatment.

Garlich explained that in its old quarters at the hospital, the Center was able to evaluate patients only on Fridays. Now, he said, "we're evaluating every day and handling referrals on a much quicker basis."

He pointed out that in many areas, where there have been no staff additions, personnel will be able to treat and evaluate more persons because of the improved facilities.

Garlich said the new building will enable the Center to expand its services to younger children. Presently, he said, the Center's services are geared to children at least 3½-years-old or older. But with the recent initiation of a new program to evaluate every child in Pettis County from one to eight-years-old, the Center will be providing services to youngsters between one and 3½.

With the addition of the new programs, Garlich said, the Therapy Center will have to spend more for consultants' costs.

The new structure contains 10,000 square feet. Classroom space has increased from three small classrooms at the hospital to six rooms and expanded occupational, physical and speech therapy areas.

The new facility also will house the Pettis County Sheltered Workshop. The workshop will contain 7,000-square-feet of working space. About 25 more handicapped adults are expected to be hired once the workshop moves into its new facility. Presently, the workshop has about 40 employees.

The entire cost of the $240,000 facility (including the Workshop) was financed by a $70,000 grant from the Missouri Developmental Disabilities program and $167,000 from the Virginia Flower Trust Fund.

The building will be dedicated in about a month in memory of the late Mrs. Flower. The structure will be renamed the Virginia Flower Child Development and Rehabilitation Center.

Garlich noted that the new facility will be a "community

Alaska pipeline bill signed by president

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon said today there is a "reasonable possibility" that Arab nations will increase their oil exports to the United States and Europe.

He made the comment in signing the Alaska pipeline bill, clearing the way for work to start next year on the $4.5 billion project to tap America's richest known oil field.

He said the administration is making sufficient progress in negotiations regarding the Middle East that there is a "reasonable possibility" the Arab nations will increase their exports.

"But even if it happened tomorrow we would still have an energy crisis for this year," he said.

In signing the bill, Nixon said: "About three years late but better late than never." The President said he will ask Congress to consider separate legislation repealing provisions he objects to in the bill.

Construction of the pipeline, to run 789 miles from the Alaskan Arctic, had been stalled for three years by environmental lawsuits.

The pipeline is to be completed in 1977, the White House said, and is to carry some 600,000 barrels per day initially, increasing eventually to 2 million barrels per day. That amount of oil would represent about 8½ per cent of today's total U.S. petroleum consumption.

Nixon said the bill "has a couple of clinkers in it that I would very much like to see removed; however, I thought the energy crisis was so important that it overrode this consideration."

Nixon had been urged by Roy Ash, director of the Office of Management and Budget, to veto the bill because of provisions broadening the powers of government regulatory agencies.

Nixon said the administration's steps to deal with the energy crisis "will require some sacrifice by all and no suffering by any."

The vast reservoir of oil was discovered on Alaska's North Slope in February 1968, setting off the environmental struggle.

The bill passed in both houses of Congress earlier this week. In Anchorage, Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., a consortium of oil firms building the pipeline, announced it hoped to get a construction permit soon after the President signs the bill.

An engineer said the first year's work, which could start as early as June, would include road construction near the Yukon River and site clearance for 12 pumper stations.

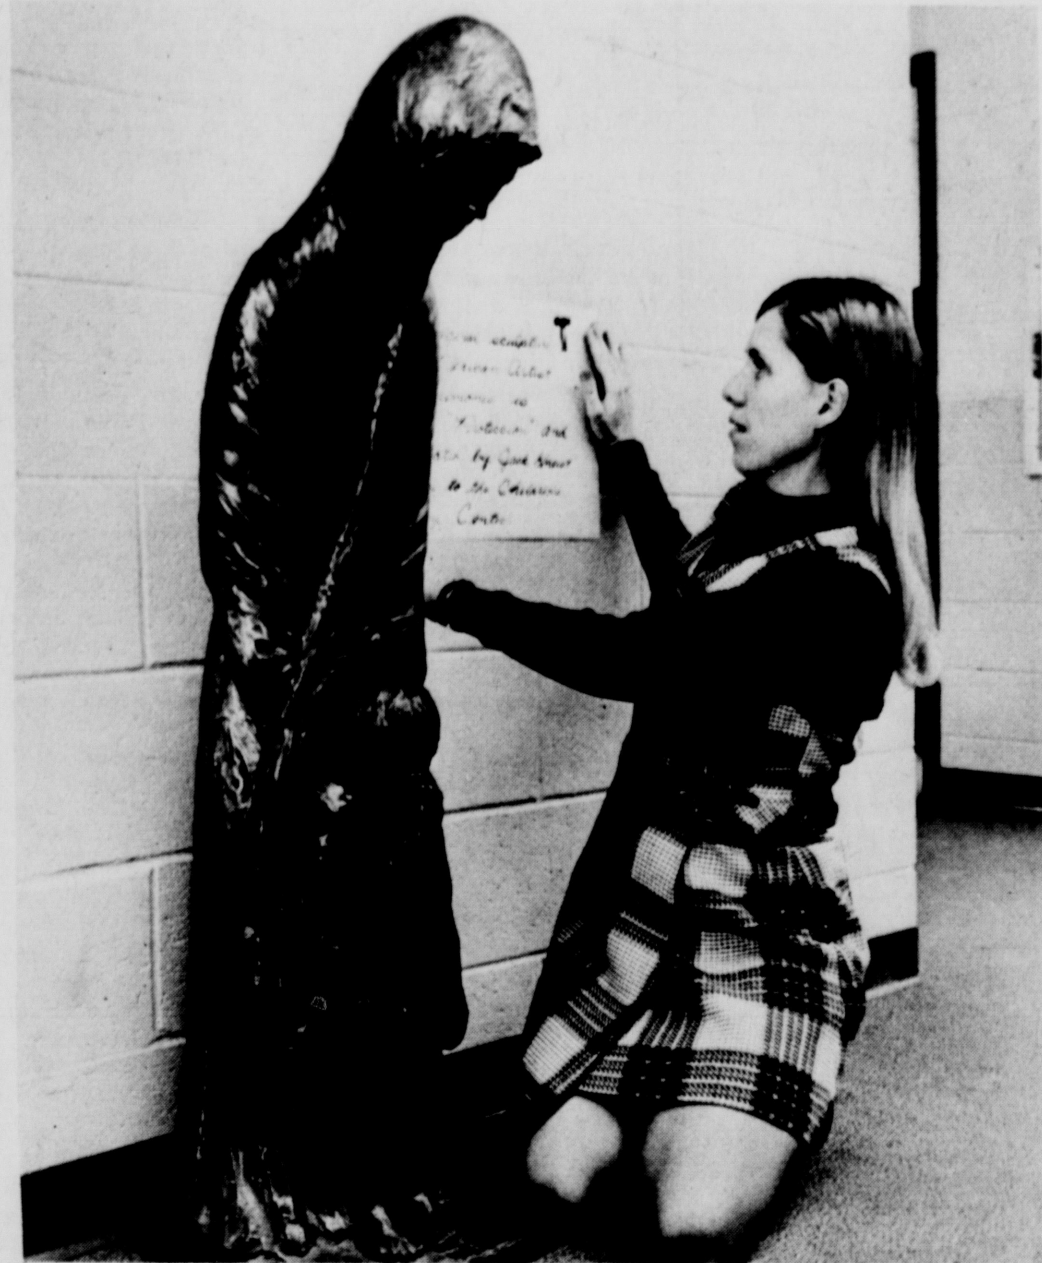

Work on the 789-mile pipeline itself will begin in the rugged Keystone Canyon area north of Valdez, the ice-free Gulf of Alaska port to which the oil will be piped to waiting tankers bound for West Coast ports.

The bill authorizes a permit for the line and increases the maximum width for pipeline right of ways across public land, overriding a federal appeals court decision of last February halting the project on grounds it violated the old limit.

The oil field, in the Prudhoe Bay area on the Arctic Ocean, has reserves estimated at 10 billion to 30 billion barrels.

Alyeska was formed by seven oil companies, which paid more than $900 million to the state of Alaska for leases on 412,453 acres.

Three of the firms — Atlantic Richfield, British Petroleum and Exxon — control 95 per cent of the reserves. After flowing through the four-foot-diameter pipe, the oil will be loaded into tankers that will take it either 1,200 miles to Puget Sound or 2,000 miles to San Francisco.

Open house preparation

Carolyn Cloud, a teacher at the Children's Therapy Center, posts a sign Friday describing a bronze statue recently donated to the center. The statue, worth $3,500 to $4,000, is entitled "Protection," and was cast by famed Mexican artist Victor Salmons. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kneist, 706 West Fifth, and a group of friends donated the statue, which will be on permanent display in the lobby of the center. The new Center will hold its open house Sunday from noon to 2 p.m. and the public is invited to tour the facility.

Skylab rookies in orbit

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Three rookie American astronauts rocketed into orbit today to start man's longest planned space voyage, an 84-day "holiday cruise" aboard the Skylab space station.

"You've got three happy rookies up here," commander Gerald P. Carr reported after the space newcomers became adjusted to the weightless world. "It's really neat. It's a great world."

"We can hardly keep our eyes away from the window," said solar physicist Dr. Edward G. Gibson. "There already are nose smears all over the window."

During the marathon flight, which will span Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's, Carr, Gibson and William R. Pogue are to conduct extensive studies of the sun, earth and man.

They'll also take an unprecedented look at the great comet Kohoutek, a visitor from outer space now streaking toward the sun. Marine Lt. Col. Carr, 41; Air Force Lt.

Col. Pogue, 43, and Gibson, 37, began the final Skylab trip on the power of a Saturn 1B rocket that thundered into a clear sky right on schedule at 9:01 a.m. EST.

"It's as smooth as glass," Carr reported as the astronauts and their Apollo ferry ship darted into orbit more than 100 miles high 10 minutes after liftoff. They immediately began the 17,400 mile-an-hour chase to track down the 85-ton Skylab, which was several thousand miles ahead of them.

Slightly more than two hours after launch, the spacemen executed the first of five rocket firings intended to close the gap — a two-second burst from their big main engine.

"The burn was on time," Carr reported. "That was one heck of a kick in the pants."

As the astronauts departed, President Nixon sent them a message that said in part: "The final manned flight of the Skylab program will bring to a close the single most productive program in man's quest for knowledge about himself and his world."

The flight, which Carr has dubbed a "holiday cruise," will be the most rigorous test yet of man's ability to withstand the physical and psychological stresses of long space travel. The medical results will have a bearing on whether astronauts one day will embark for other planets.

By studying the sun and earth, the astronauts hope to learn if space can be exploited for the benefit of mankind.

No one can predict the benefits. But the thousands of photos and miles of tape gathered by the first two Skylab crews and the data to be collected on this last mission could provide a valuable payoff in the years ahead.

open stairwells to the upper floors of the U-shaped Stratford Apartments, which has wings of three and four stories.

Fire Capt. Walt Wilmington said by the time the first three fire companies arrived, the fire had spread to all floors. "And by the time our firemen got their hose lines up, the flames had shot through the roof," he said.

He said more than 50 persons were rescued from the flaming building by firemen who guided residents down ladders and fire escapes. Others had already leaped from the structure, officials said.

Hill said many of the bodies were found on the top floors of the 40-year-old building. Sheet-draped bodies were lined on a sidewalk outside.

Twenty-four perish in Los Angeles fire

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fire flashed through an apartment building early today, trapping some sleeping residents and forcing others to toss their children to rescuers and then jump for their lives. Fire Chief Raymond Hill said 24 persons died, nine of them children.

Officials said at least 52 persons were injured, some critically, in what they said was the worst fire in the city's history. An undetermined number of persons were still missing nine hours after the fire was extinguished, but officials believed most had simply left the area.

Sleeping residents of the 68-unit, brick building in the city's Wilshire section were overwhelmed by the spiraling fire that broke out shortly before midnight PST, officials said. They said the fire licked up

Attendance Figures

State Fair survey shows urban influence

At least four widely-held notions regarding the Missouri State Fair suffered a statistical blow according to a marketing research report released this week by Ron Jones, Fair secretary.

The report showed that, according to public opinion, the Fair is not overly-oriented toward agriculture; blue and white collar workers outnumbered farmers in actual Fair attendance; Fair attendance is on a sporadic rather than annual basis; and the county with the largest number of Fair-goers is Jackson County, a urban-oriented area.

The report, the first of its kind conducted for the Fair, was compiled by Ron Stout, a University of Missouri graduate student. In conducting the study, Stout supervised the random interviewing of 1,411 Fair goers.

Responding to Stout's findings, Jones indicated they suggest two possible avenues of progress for future Fairs: to continue the strong tradition of agriculture, the state's top industry, and to upgrade the growth of the Fair to appeal to urban interests.

"Nobody should ever get the idea that we are going to slight agriculture in the coming years," Jones said in an interview Thursday. "There's no way in the world we are going to do that. We're just happy that the Fair is attracting more and more people in the state."

"We'll try in the years ahead to plan for urban interests too and to further accentuate additional fields of industry which are becoming increasingly popular and important in our state. But," he added, "agriculture is still number one on our book."

Persons living closest to the Fairgrounds apparently don't visit the event as much as citizens living farther away, the report showed. After breaking down the distance into seven categories, figures indicated that the largest number of Fair-goers, (58.8 per cent), came from between 50-125 miles away. Assuming second place were persons from 125-200 miles away (15.8 per cent). Only 2 per cent of the total actual Fair population came from 10-25 miles away.

These figures, Jones said, reflect an estimated account of the actual number of individuals who attended the Fair. Total attendance figures consider the total number of persons who attended the entire Fair.

Broken down into age groups, attendance figures in the report indicated that the 31-to-40-year-old bracket contributed 31.4 per cent of the total attendance. Ranking second was the 21-30-year-old age group, with a 24 per cent showing.

On a county-by-county basis, Jackson County attained first place in Fair attendance figures by supplying 39,670 Fair-goers. Pettis County, with 19,620 attending, placed third behind Boone County, which had 20,160.

Although placing third in the actual county-by-county attendance, Pettis County moved up to second place when it's Fair-going figure of 19,620 was compared with its total population of 34,137. With these calculations, 40.5 per cent of Pettis Countians attended the Fair.

Placing first in these figures, which revealed how an individual county's Fair-going populations compared with its actual number of citizens, was neighboring Saline County, whose 10,373 Fair-goers represented 42.1 per cent of the total county population of 24,633.

An estimated 34.5 per cent of all Fair-goers have attended the Fair at least five times previously. Approximately half of the respondents, the reports stated, attended the Fair last year.

The accumulation of all statistics, Stout concluded, indicates that "attendance is sporadic with a majority of the people, and that it is not an 'annual' event as one might believe it should be."

Asked what single event most attracted them to the Fair, the greatest number of respondents (95,850) indicated that it took a combination of events to draw them here. Other common responses were grandstand attractions (25.1 per cent) and exhibits (23.1 per cent).

Among the suggestions for improving the Fair were more air conditioning, better and close parking facilities, more racing, having celebrities on weekends, more celebrities, free shuttle buses, more exhibits, more entertainment, and more "girlie" shows.

Commenting on these suggestions, Jones

New Jewish head poetic, optimistic

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Reform Judaism, a once highly rationalized arm of the faith, today has a new national leader with a poetic, mystical side to him.

Rabbi Alexander M. Schindler, installed this week as president of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, says: "We have to recapture a sense of the holy in life."

"Man requires this inward life that emanates from a mystical core," the 47-year-old rabbi added in an interview. "The human story cannot be told without the dimension that transcends all logic."

The gray-haired, 5-foot-9 rabbi, who dabbles in poetry as a pastime, said reform Judaism was "hyper-rational" when it developed 100 years ago in this country.

"But the imbalance is being corrected," he said. "Mysticism is a vital aspect of religion. If we concentrate only on the social implications of faith, we fail to draw on its essence, on the waters of its source."

A scholar who for 15 years has directed the national educational activities of reform Judaism, Rabbi Schindler was described by its board of trustees as "a leader in the tradition of the prophets."

The son of Yiddish poet Eliezer Schindler, the rabbi was brought to this country in 1938 as a boy of 13 by his family from Germany in the early years of Hitlerism. Rabbi Schindler had his experience with Nazism was "not grave."

"I only experienced discrimination rather than extermination," he said. He is author of a book by that title, "From Discrimination to Extermination," analyzing the Hitler years of 1933 to 1945.

A World War II combat veteran, he served with the U.S. Army's ski troops in three European campaigns, receiving the Bronze Star and Purple Heart. He still skis for recreation.

He also plays tennis, smokes cigars, is an opera buff and "by nature, a cock-eyed optimist." "Despair and gloom are not part of my vocabulary," he said.

Of the state of the country's religious health, he said: "I see a resurgence rather than a diminution. There's a 'soul weather' about us."

"I think we're entering an age more amenable to the religious spirit. Increasingly, people are coming to the conviction that religion is essential, that the future of mankind cannot be entrusted to scientific rationalism."

Concerning the national political scene, he said there was a "cold wind blowing in our hearts at the freedom eroded and highest trust betrayed" but there are "counterwinds of morality."

"The Constitution demonstrated its holding power," he said. "I see beneath the gloom a new buoyance rising, a kind of hopefulness. There was almost a coup d'etat from within, but the evil decree has been averted. The system has held up."

He said the experience had demonstrated more vividly to the nation the indispensability of religious-moral fibre. "A nation's strength depends on its integrity," he said.

LOSE 20 POUNDS IN TWO WEEKS!

Famous U.S. Women Ski Team Diet

During the non-snow off season the U.S. Women's Alpine Ski Team members go on the "Ski Team" diet to lose 20 pounds in two weeks. That's right — 20 pounds in 14 days! The basis of the diet is chemical food action and was devised by a famous Colorado physician especially for the U.S. Ski Team. Normal energy is maintained (very important!) while reducing. You keep "full" — no starvation — because the diet is designed that way. It's a diet that is easy to follow whether you work, travel or stay at home. (Not the grapefruit diet!).

This is, honestly, a fantastically successful diet. If it weren't, the U.S. Women's Ski Team wouldn't be permitted to use it! Right? So, give yourself the same break the U.S. Ski Team gets. Lose weight the scientific, proven way. Even if you've tried all the other diets, you owe it to yourself to try the U.S. Women's Ski Team Diet. That is, if you really do want to lose 20 pounds in two weeks. Order today. Tear this out as a reminder.

Send only $3.00 ($3.25 for Rush Service) - cash is O.K. - to: NATIONAL HEALTH INSTITUTE, P.O. Box 39, Dept. 16, Durham, Calif. 95938. Don't order unless you want to lose 20 pounds in two weeks! Because that's what the Ski Team Diet will do.

Produce price hikes seen as reasonable

Increases in the prices of farm products are not out of line with price increases for other commodities, or when compared to wage trends, Chuck Aldridge of the Missouri Department of Agriculture told Sedalia Kiwanians Thursday at the Bothwell Hotel.

Aldridge was assisted by Miss Becky Reeves, Missouri Queen of Fairs, who presented comparative tables showing that most staple food products cost much more in other countries than in America. This is especially true in Communist-controlled countries and in Japan, they pointed out.

Gene Clary introduced the program.

Bob Gardner inducted into the club the following new members: Clary, Robert H. Woolery, Dr. Robert L. Glass, Chester Haight, and Robert Richardson.

Doig criticized President Nixon's energy message as being "puny in many respects," and said the oil industry has seen no signs of any strong action by the government.

When asked why the industry waited so long to call for the measures, Doig replied that it hadn't.

"Even a year ago, we were predicting gasoline rationing by mid-1974," Doig said. "But I guess everyone assumed we had an infinitely large tank of oil out there that we could always get to."

Citation presented assistance to the council. Hall has been active in community betterment for 12 years, eight of them in Pettis County. Presenting Hall with the citation is Mrs. Franklin Phillips, Hughesville, chairman of the council.

Building delay costly,
Alpha Sintered reports

Alpha-Sintered Metals, Inc., has lost approximately $75,000 in potential profits because of a delay in the construction of its new plant on east Boonville Road, president Norman Bankovich said this week.

City voters, after defeating last November a $150,000 bond issue to construct a building for the firm, later approved the same proposal in a special election held in February. The building, according to reports, was to have been completed by the middle of September.

The Dean Construction Co. is the contractor for the facility.

Bankovich said he was particularly concerned with the deal because the profit loss will not allow the firm to make the first monthly lease payment of $1,200 in March, as was originally agreed upon.

"We were banking on being able to show some profits by that time," Bankovich said. "It doesn't look now like we'll be able to make any kind of payment.

At his request, Bankovich said, City Counselor Bob Fritz is currently investigating the possibility of delaying the first-payment deadline.

"I certainly don't want to point fingers at anybody or get anyone upset because I will have to live with them in the future," Bankovich said. "All I can say is I'm disappointed with the way things have been going."

Bankovich, representatives for Dean and city officials were unanimous in believing that the delay was not caused by one party.

"I think it was a lack of communication between the company and the contractor as much as anything," Mayor Jerry Jones said. "Norman (Bankovich) wasn't able to come here, himself, until just a few weeks ago."

In agreeing with Jones, Bankovich expressed his concern that the city currently has no replacement for the man who was his original contact with the city — former City Economic Development director, Bill Hall.

"I've had no one to go to except the mayor for the past month," Bankovich said. "And I, of course, realize that he has other problems and is used to concern himself with besides ours. I just wish the city had someone full time to help us like Mr. Hall did."

A spokesman for Dean explained that the project was delayed for numerous reasons beyond the firm's control. Obtaining the Missouri Clean Water Commission's approval of the building's septic system, he noted, was delayed for six weeks because the two original plans, drawn up by Alpha Sintered engineers, were rejected.

The first system was rejected, he said, because it failed to take into account the "non-percolating" nature of the surrounding soil which created an added hindrance to sewage treatment. Also, the spokesman said, a second plan was rejected because the number of persons it was designed to serve was later changed. This change, he said, made the proposed plan unacceptable.

After then designing plans for an acceptable septic system themselves, the Dean spokesman said, it was necessary to secure the approval of Alpha-Sintered officials because the cost of the new system exceeded the original budget.

Also, the spokesman said, there was a seven-week delay because "we recommended that the foundation and floor height of the building be elevated a foot. We felt it would offer a better site utilization. Also, we submitted a redesigned foundation plan. But, the company officials finally elected to leave the plans as originally drawn."

Currently, the spokesman indicated, utility lines and water pipes are being extended to the property. "By the time they are ready to be hooked up, the building will be ready," he said. "This will be within the next five working days."

Police probe theft
of parts from car

Sedalia police are investigating the theft of nearly $400 in automotive accessories from Bill Greer Motors, 1700 West Broadway. The items may have been taken sometime during the night of Nov. 9.

According to police, a set of tires, wheels and lug bolts, valued at $350, and two wheel covers, worth $40, were taken the theft.

In other police news, Iola Smith, 707 South Lafayette, told police that a portable sewing machine, valued at $264, was taken from the home of her daughter sometime between Sept. 19 and Oct. 9.

Mrs. Smith gave the name of a suspect in the incident and said that she believed the machine had been sold to a pawn shop.

A wire cage containing four rabbits was cut open sometime late Wednesday night or early Thursday morning and the rabbits killed and thrown into the yard of Rodger Templemier, 131 East Chestnut.

According to the police report, the animals were found by a neighbor, who notified Templemier.

Redecorating bids
obtained by court

Two bids were received by the Pettis County Court Friday for plaster work on 18 rooms and hallways in the Pettis County Courthouse.

A low bid of $1,855.45 was received from the D & J Construction Co., 1720 South Ohio. The other bid was from William E. Norman, Knob Noster, for $2,050.

Presiding Judge Harry Welch said the court would probably make a determination on the bids Monday.

The D & J Construction Co. said it would perform the work on weekends and at night so the work would not interfere with courthouse operations. The other bid listed no details of work plans.

Blackburn named group's president

Russell Blackburn, presiding judge of Audrain County, was elected president of the West-Central Missouri Judges Association Thursday at a quarterly meeting of the group in Sedalia, according to Pettis County Presiding Judge Harry Welch.

Other county court judges elected to offices at the meeting were: A. H. Jones, Saline County, vice-president; and Harvey L. Day, Lafayette County, treasurer.

The officers will serve one-year terms, Welch said. Seventeen county courts are represented in the association.

Civil cases are dismissed in court

Two civil suits were dismissed Thursday in Pettis County Circuit Court, both at the requests of the plaintiffs.

Marion Homes, a division of Tidwell Industries, Bear Creek, Ala., asked the court to dismiss its suit against Clifford Danielson and Danielson Mobile Homes, West Highway 50.

Marion Homes had contended in a suit filed March 22 that Danielson owed $11,420 to the company for payment of two mobile homes he had purchased. Danielson also agreed in court to dismiss a counterclaim he filed against Marion Homes June 5. He alleged that Marion Homes owed him $7,043.16.

In the second suit, Larry and Judith Sparks, Warrensburg, asked the court to dismiss a suit filed Aug. 29, 1972, against John Roder, Jefferson City, in connection with a reported auto accident on June 22, 1972, at West Broadway and Industrial Drive.

The Sparks couple had sought a total of $45,000 for injuries they allegedly sustained and $274.68 in damage to their auto.

Terms of both settlements were not disclosed.

Ford privacy invasion is alleged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats probing Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford's personal finances were accused today by a Republican on the House Judiciary committee of an offensive invasion of Ford's privacy.

Ford, under questioning for the second day at hearings on his confirmation, denied any wrongdoing in the handling of his various campaign, personal and other accounts.

He specifically rejected any implication that he had sought payment for speeches and other appearances in order to help meet personal expenses.

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., questioned Ford about his deduction as a business expense of money spent for clothing for himself and his wife on a trip to China last year.

Ford said the deduction was held proper by the Internal Revenue Service because the clothing was not the kind he and his wife normally wore. It included short-sleeved shirts for the hot China summer, which he said he never wore elsewhere, and walking shoes for his wife, who does little walking at home.

Ford also denied Brooks' charge that there was a conflict of interest in his receiving $100 a month as a director of a Michigan label manufacturing firm with $394,129 in government contracts. Ford said the contracts were a negligible part of the company's $20 million-a-year annual business.

The questioning of Ford's finances drew an angry response from Rep. Robert McClure, R-Ill., who told Ford the entire investigation amounted to "an offensive invasion of your privacy." McClure said no one would dare to require such detailed information of any individual in private life.

Ford was also questioned closely about speeches he had made under Democratic administrations calling for a "a return to reverence for the rule of law" and "a whitening down of the power of the executive."

Ford denied he offered to help convicted stock swindler Louis Wolfson.

The question was raised Thursday by Rep. Jerome R. Waldie, D-Calif., at House Judiciary Committee hearings on the Ford nomination. The hearings resume today.

New system for pickup truck licenses

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Pickup truck owners in Missouri will be issued license plates under a new system effective Jan. 1, James R. Spradling, revenue director, said today.

Spradling said a passenger car type registration system will be started for smaller commercial vehicles to comply with a new state law.

Plates of all commercial vehicles, including trucks and buses, now expire in January of each year. Under the new legislation, trucks licensed for 6,000-12,000 pounds will be issued plates which will expire one year from the date of purchase, the same way plates are issued for passenger cars.

Applicants renewing their licenses in January will be issued plates which expire from 6 to 17 months later and fees will be prorated accordingly. When the pickup truck owner renews his license the next time, he will receive a 12-month plate.

Spradling said applications should be made early as a $2 penalty will be assessed for late registrations.

Influence

indicated that he is seriously considering at least some for the future.

"We already feel we should probably have one big-name grandstand attraction on the weekend," Jones said. "If a guy in Springfield or St. Louis wants to take his family to see an act now, he could never get home in the rush hour traffic, pick up his family, drive back to Sedalia and get here in time to see the show. It's just impossible. We feel that something should be done for these people." Jones said.

"We are seriously considering the possibility of having two grandstand performances each night. Most entertainers won't charge any more for two performances than they would for one. Again, it gets back to our idea of trying to provide better entertainment for an increased number of people," he added.

building." He indicated that the large, multi-purpose room can be used for night meetings of local organizations.

"This building is a dream come true for the board and all of us associated with the Center," Garlich said. "We want the people to come out Sunday and see for themselves what we're doing with their money."

Polly's pointers

Old sink needs some decorating

By POLLY CRAMER
Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — I have an old-fashioned porcelain enamel sink with the pipes showing underneath. I would like to know how to make this look more attractive and feel sure some of the girls can give me ideas. — TERRI

DEAR POLLY — A Pet Peeve of mine is the arrogance retail firms show when they do not put their street numbers on the fronts of their stores or whatever. It is as if they were saying "Of course, everyone knows where Johnson's bank or service station is." When driving in an unfamiliar part of town or as a newcomer one would be more kindly disposed toward stores that showed their numbers. I often look for such numbers to see if I am headed in the right direction or whether or not I have passed my destination.

When I stroll along looking in shop windows I could discover new places to shop and remember their names if their names were on the windows at eye level or below. A number of stores keep one guessing unless you turn around and look over the door, particularly in shopping centers. — MRS. H.F.

DEAR POLLY — I'm answering Edith about rusting tin cake pans, cookie sheets, etc. I found that drying them immediately after washing did not prevent this. After drying mine thoroughly with a towel I place them on my stove over the pilot light for about 15 minutes or until warm to the touch. Let cool and put away. — MRS. A.F.

DEAR POLLY — and Edith — My aunt used to sprinkle salt in her cast iron pots and her tin utensils and leave it in the pans while they were stored. The salt absorbs any moisture so no rust. — LINDA

DEAR GIRLS — After drying such pans I put mine in the oven if it is still warm. Avoid scrubbing tin utensils too energetically. This could remove the tin plating and expose the iron which tends to rust. I am sure we all know that heat discolors tin but do not try to remove the color since browned tin heats faster than does shiny tin. — POLLY.

Curriculum change is board topic

(Sedalia-Democrat Capital)

KNOB NOSTER — A discussion of new high school graduation requirements, which take effect next June, highlighted activities at the Knob Noster school board meeting held here this week.

Under the new rulings, students must complete at least 20 units to graduate, an increase of three over the former minimum requirement. In addition, a full unit of credit per year will be granted for all music and physical education classes that meet for two consecutive semesters. Formerly, year-long music and physical education classes were counted as half units.

In other business, a request for an activity bus to transport students to school events, other than those participating as team or pep club members, was dismissed because of the gasoline shortage. It was also recommended that school officials follow all possible conservation measures in order to save on electricity, heating gas and gasoline.

Insurance coverage on school musical instruments, audio-visual equipment and office equipment was awarded to The Wightman Agency, Inc., St. Louis.

The resignations of Mrs. Patricia Dankenbring and Mrs. Sally Batz were accepted.

Recognized

Robert Heitmeyer, left, 2202 South Vermont, and Jack West, St. Joseph, were honored recently for outstanding Extension youth work in Missouri. Heitmeyer received a distinguished service award at a meeting of the University of Missouri Extension Association. West received the state award in 1972 and obtained a similar national honor last month in Roanoke, Va., at the annual conference of the National Association of Extension 4-H agents.

Three firms awarded bids to supply new state cars

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — New car dealers in Florissant, Farmington and Jefferson City have been awarded bids for supplying the state with new cars.

The bid awarding was announced Thursday by Robert L. James, assistant to the governor.

The contract for general use sedans will go to Paddock Chrysler-Plymouth Co., Florissant, for four-door Plymouth Satellites. The Florissant firm entered a base bid, including automatic transmission, of $2,494 per car.

For other accessories on Stellites, such as air conditioning, power steering, power brakes and tinted glass, the award price could go as high as $3,048.75.

Sedans for use by state agencies based in the capital will be bought from Jefferson City Dodge. Jefferson City, at $2,483.40, including automatic transmission. The price could go to $3,038.15 with additional options.

For general use station wagons, the state contract will go to Wichman Motor Co., Farmington, for the American Motors Matador at a base price of $2,722.01, including automatic transmissions. Other accessories could expand the price to $3,285.66.

The delivery time is 60-90 days, James said. He said the average price of automobiles purchased by the state last year was $3,300, with minimum accessories.

James said the total volume of the contracts could exceed $500,000.

Herbert C. Danron, state procurement officer, said it is difficult to determine the number of automobiles the state will buy under the one-year contracts.

They will be driven for six years or 72,000 miles, whichever comes first.

There were 18 bids from four major manufacturers.

Inspection near silos is planned

(Democrat-Capital Service)

WHITEMAN AFB — Survey teams will begin inspecting land soon near missile silos controlled by the 351st Strategic Missile Wing here, it was announced Thursday.

The surveys will be made on land rented or owned near the silos. Two-man teams from the Defense Mapping Agency Topographic Center will perform the surveys at each of the 150 missile sites during November and December.

Residents in these areas may expect visits from the two-man teams, it was reported. Emphasis was placed on the fact that no permanent or semi-permanent markers will be set up to identify the survey routes or the points to be studied. The survey is not a part of any further construction or land procurement around the sites, it was stressed.

The work consists of establishing four points (north, south, east and west) at each missile site, 3,000 feet from the center of each silo. Certain gravity measurements will be taken, but no vehicles will be used in off-road operations. Any area land owner with questions about the survey should call 563-5511, extension 3860, here.

New tack by Nixon to woo Congress

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's survival strategy is now clear. He is wooing Congress to try to ensure that an effort to impeach him never gets off the ground.

Rowan That failing, he is courting GOP senators (like Charles Percy of Illinois) whom he viewed with contempt in his safer days. The President's advisers have told him that liberal and moderate Republican Senators are the key to the two-thirds Senate vote that is required to convict him and remove him from office.

Finally the President is concerned enough to try to hold enough Liberal Republican and Southern Democratic support to make a majority impeachment vote in the House unlikely.

All this is evidence that Mr. Nixon is aware of those incredible figures coming out of the House Judiciary Committee and the office of its chairman, Rep. Peter Rodino. On Tuesday alone, 5,595 letters and telegrams arrived demanding the President's impeachment and only 313 against it. The grand total of messages through the 13th was 94,614 for impeachment, 2,679 against it.

Small wonder, then, that the White House chose Percy to reveal on "Meet the Press" that Mr. Nixon will meet with all Republican members of Congress and tell them something that supposedly will wipe away all doubts about the probity and integrity of the President.

With a notable effort at party loyalty, 1976 presidential hopeful Percy suggested that Nixon's meetings will be "the beginning of full and total disclosure."

All this was occurring as the President revealed that still another recording relative to his conversations with former White House counsel John Dean is missing and presumed (by the White House) not to exist. However, the President said, he is sending the federal courts some notes, dictation belts and reels of tape that ousted special prosecutor Archibald Cox never even asked for. These volunteered bits of information are supposed to exculpate the President "once and for all."

The President must sense that this will not erase the doubts, the suspicion, the disillusionment which are reflected in that mail to the House Judiciary Committee.

The people now want direct, undoctored evidence of what (former Atty. Gen. and campaign manager) John Mitchell said to the President when he telephoned him three days after the Watergate break-in. They want to know whether the President suggested to Mitchell that he resign and get out of town. Americans want Judge John J. Sirica to listen to the tapes and determine if the President really told Dean that it would be no trouble to raise a million dollars in hush money to pacify those arrested in the Watergate burglary, or if he really told Dean he had made a mistake in talking to Charles Colson about executive clemency for some of those convicted of Watergate crimes.

But the White House comes up with a belated story that no tapes of these critical conversations exist.

What good are notes and other recordings volunteered by Mr. Nixon and his lawyers? It is obvious that they will not give the court anything that implicates the President in the assortment of felonies we label as Watergate. Unless the President and his advisers are dumber than even their worst critics believe, they will volunteer tapes and documents that will make the President look like Little Red Riding Hood and make presidential accuser Dean appear to be the vilest critter ever to rampage through the Washington political jungle.

When an honest prosecutor and attorney general are ousted by the man under investigation; when crucial tape recordings suddenly don't exist; when tapes which do exist suddenly become "unintelligible" despite sworn earlier testimony that the White House taping apparatus could pick up a whisper — then public suspicion widens and deepens. It won't be erased by mere powwows with Republican congressmen or releasing self-serving documents culled selectively from the files by the man under investigation.

Every member of the House and a third of the senators must answer to the American people next year. You can bet they are counting the letters and telegrams nervously. And if Mr. Nixon does not produce a lot more than he has so far, the move to impeach will go forward.

It may not succeed, but it will go forward.

Fund-raising is set for Therapy Center

This weekend a drive will be conducted in Sedalia and parts of Pettis County to raise funds for the new Virginia Flower Child Development and Rehabilitation Center.

The center at 600 East 14th houses the Children's Therapy Center and Sheltered Workshop of Pettis County. An open house will be held at the facility from noon to 2 p.m. Sunday, with a formal dedication planned for sometime in December.

Goal of the local drive this year is $15,000—up $3,000 over last year. The center's total budget will increase from about $98,000 to $125,000.

All of this reflects expanded services and increased personnel — benefits of having a larger facility. The added room has been needed for some time, with the center long ago outgrowing its quarters in the basement of Bothwell Hospital.

Services at the center will be expanded and improved in the areas of therapy and treatment for children, as well as in remedial and child development programs. Adult treatment services also will be improved, especially in post-stroke therapy and for those with hearing problems. Counseling and vocational evaluation for physically and mentally handicapped adults is included.

Placement of the Sheltered Workshop under the same roof with the Therapy Center also will be a great benefit. This worthy organization has proved itself many times over.

Since its formation 18 years ago, the Children's Therapy Center has served the needs of Pettis Countians well—and without charge. It has built an enviable reputation nationwide. Now, thanks to the generosity of the late Mrs. Flower, those services can be greatly improved and expanded.

But all of this takes money. The best opportunity to give will be this Saturday and Sunday.

"We're Having Tape Troubles, Too!"

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Unless Saudi Arabia lifts its oil embargo, the U.S. can look forward to a bleak winter of electric power blackouts, chilly homes, restricted driving and factory shutdowns. A prolonged embargo will bring a serious recession, perhaps even a depression.

This is the grim view of the Treasury Department's energy experts, who are regarded as the best in Washington.

Most disturbing is their warning that the Arab boycott, if it continues, will plunge the nation into an economic tailspin. Already, some airlines and factories are laying off workers.

The petrochemical industry, which produces petroleum-based plastic products and synthetic fibers, was the first to feel the pinch. The shortage has forced some plastic plants to cut back production.

Alarmed industry leaders are circulating a private study, which warns ominously: "As little as a 15 per cent reduction in output of the petrochemical industry would result in a loss of as many as 1.6 million jobs and a loss in domestic production value in excess of $65 billion."

A vast range of products — from aspirins and autos to tires and toys — require petroleum. Pesticides and herbicides are another example; a cutback could cost the consumer billions in higher food costs as a result of crop damage.

The campaign to reduce pleasure driving will hurt out-of-the-way resorts and restaurants. The tourist and camping industries also depend heavily on nonessential driving.

Even President Nixon's call to hold highway speeds down to 50 miles per hour will slow freight deliveries and reduce truckers' income. The teamsters, whose pay is based on mileage, will also have to tighten their belts.

Many Americans already are growing uneasy about job prospects, layoffs and loss of overtime. This has caused them to hold off purchases and save their money as a hedge against possible income loss, according to the Treasury's consumer studies.

This sagging consumer confidence is expected to cause a drop in sales. Already, the sales of durable goods, such as cars and appliances, have leveled off.

Our political leaders, meanwhile, aren't anxious to have millions of voters shivering in their homes this winter. The

Merry-go-round

Oil embargo could fuel a depression

Treasury experts, therefore, expect the politicians to give households priority over industries in allocating fuel. This will shut down still more factories and throw more people out of work.

The economic chain reaction, in the solemn opinion of the Treasury experts, will increase unemployment by 1975 to a dangerous 7 or 8 per cent. They believe this could rise to 10 or 12 per cent by 1976 if the Arab oil boycott persists.

Indeed, one private Treasury study warns: "A severe supply disruption in the late 1970's or early 1980's could cause a major economic depression."

According to the Treasury's calculations, 16 to 18 per cent of the nation's petroleum consumption will be affected, directly or indirectly, by the Arab oil embargo. The last tankers from Saudi Arabia, which were filled before the boycott, are now arriving in U.S. ports.

Within a few weeks, say the Treasury experts, the nation will face power blackouts from New York City to San Antonio. New England and the Northwest will be the hardest hit. But there will also be power shortages in the central states.

Gasoline rationing, they add, is inevitable. The administrative machinery and the gas stamps will be ready in about two months.

Only a lifting of the oil embargo or providentially warm weather, they conclude, will save Americans from their worst winter since World War II. And it could get still worse during the winters to come.

MONEY FROM FORD — Vice President-designate Gerald Ford dished money out of his own campaign funds for two members of Congress who sit on the committees now investigating him.

Two separate $1,000 transfers were made from Ford's funds to political committees supporting the re-election of Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., on Oct. 24, 1972, and Nov. 1, 1972. Griffin is a member of the Senate Rules Committee which has been conducting hearings on the Ford nomination.

Griffin conceded that he hadn't told Rules Chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev., about the $2,000 turnover but contended, "This is no more a conflict of interest than the fact that Ford has been a close friend of mine for 25 years."

Another $1,000 was transferred from

Ford's campaign chest to Rep. Trent Lott, R-Miss., on Aug. 1, 1972. The Mississippi freshman serves on the House Judiciary Committee, which is also holding hearings on Ford.

Lott neglected to report the specific $1,000 contribution to the clerk of the House, as required by law. "There was no effort to cover this up," he told my associate Bob Owens, "because I reported it to the State of Mississippi. Whatever mistake there may or may not have been, it was just an interpretation of the law."

He added that he saw no conflict in participating in the House investigation of Ford after having accepted $1,000 from him.

Guide to Bureau- cratese

By DOUG KNEIBERT

In announcing that the Sedalia school district will apply for a federal education grant this week to obtain more teacher aides and set up teacher workshops, among other things, the superintendent of schools pointed out that care would have to be taken to couch the application "in the language the government understands." Two specialists were hired to do the job.

You might be tempted to ask, doesn't the government understand plain English? The answer is no. The government understands Bureaucratese, which is another thing entirely. Clear, easily understood English is anathema to those who speak Bureaucratese, whose motto is: When possible, obfuscate. (See how easy it is?)

For example, you or I might say, "Let's talk this over frankly." The practitioner of Bureaucratese would much prefer, "Let's engage in an open-ended dialogue."

In my business you get a lot of mail from the government, which is very instructive in Bureaucratese. Also, I spent four years in the service, where I learned something about memo-writing. So I think I have a fair fluency in the federal tongue. And I could do the job a lot cheaper than a couple of Ph.D.'s.

A mild sensation has been generated in ragtime circles by the discovery here of a memento that might very well be one of a kind — a calling card from the original Maple Leaf Club.

The card turned up at Cook's New and Used Furniture, 520 West 16th, where it fell out of a book that was part of a block purchase from a home on the Northside. The owners held the card for local ragtime buff Larry Melton, who bought it.

On one side of the card is printed "The Maple Leaf Club, Sedalia, Mo." with "W.J. Williams" listed as the proprietor. For the first time the exact address of the club is pinned down — 121 East Main. This places it very close to the ragtime marker erected by the city in 1960.

The flip side of the card contains some rather obscure references to "The Good Time Boys." But there is nothing obscure in one line, which pertains to "Master Scott Joplin, the entertainer."

Melton, who couldn't have been happier had he discovered King Tut's tomb, dates the card circa 1899-1900.

What do you do with the South hand after your partner opens one diamond? You bid two diamonds just as anyone. Yet, when he held this hand in an international team match, George Rapee elected to respond one heart. This time the psychic response really worked. West bid two clubs; George's unsuspecting partner raised to two hearts. East passed and George went to three diamonds. North liked his hand and bid three spades whereupon George bid a hopeful three notrump. He worried a while but everyone passed and West was kind enough to open his fourth-best club. It took George approximately three seconds to win that trick and run off six diamonds and two spades for his impossible contract. Let's see what might have happened if George had bid two diamonds. West would probably have doubled; East would have bid hearts and reached a heart game. He probably would have made it, but down one would not be too bad when compared with George's notrump game. Or maybe North would have gone to five diamonds with no way to bring it home. West might have made a better lead against three notrump, but that's all conjecture. What we know is that this psychic worked.

Home brew gas

Floyd Wallace, of Leslie, Mich., holding up a small beaker of home brew gasoline, is probably the last man worried about the current energy crisis. In the tank behind him, Wallace cooks some wood, leaves, brush grass and a little garbage then somehow the distillate made from the contents turns into gasoline. Wallace says he uses the gas in his motorcycle and 1972 auto without any engine adjustments. (UPI)

World War II gas-rationing director against stiff tax

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The man who ran World War II rationing programs says gasoline rationing will be necessary again if the shortage approaches 20 per cent of demand.

Chester Bowles, head of the Office of Price Administration during the war, said he prefers rationing and opposes a stiff gasoline tax to dampen demand. A tax "would just soak the little guy," he said.

Bowles, now in retirement at his home in Essex, Conn., said the nation might be able to get by without rationing if the shortage is 10 per cent of demand.

The first thing the government will have to watch for in a rationing program is the black market, he said, noting that it almost wrecked the World War II program.

Bowles, also former ambassador to India and Democratic governor of his state, said in a telephone interview that at one point during the World War II program about 15 per cent of the ration coupons were bogus.

He said the Secret Service finally solved the problem by using infrared lights to check for counterfeit coupons.

Asked how the public would react to gasoline rationing now, he said:

"First, they'd think it was great. Then they'd be annoyed. Then they'd get all those stories about cheating. They'd feel they weren't getting their full share."

During the war, he said, the reaction "wasn't too bad, really. But the public is in such a state of confusion now, irritation, anger with the government. You'd probably get more heat than normal."

If the reaction got too bad, the program might break down, he said. But he added: "I don't think it would. People mostly want to do the right thing. But they don't want to be suckered, either."

Bowles, now 72, says the government should keep close tabs on how much gasoline and fuel oil the companies produce from crude oil supplies to guard against a critical shortage of heating oil.

"You've got to be sure you're getting enough fuel oil because gasoline is more profitable to produce," he said.

He suggested that the government's system of allocating wholesale supplies of fuel would have to take care of this problem.

Bowles said he favored setting up a local-board system for rationing gasoline like the World War II program. He said, however, the government might consider using draft boards to help set up any new program because they already have a staff.

The World War II rationing program, which started Dec. 1, 1942, and ended Aug. 15, 1945, did its job well despite the problems, Bowles said.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A citizens committee will have to make some changes in its proposed state reorganization bill before they will accept it, say two state senators.

Sens. Richard Webster, R-Carroll, and William J. Cason, D-Clinton, told the 90 or so committee members Tuesday that 100 years of legislative experience and 158 hours of study had gone into a reorganization bill vetoed by the governor.

"Be sure you know there is a reason for what you are doing," Webster told the citizens group. He and Cason cited several job positions and the environmental commissions where they felt the governor should make appointments with the advice and consent of the Senate.

The main argument between the legislators and the governor is over the number of jobs that would be filled by the governor—with Senate consent—instead of by department directors.

Reorganization of the executive branch into 14 major departments was approved in 1972 by the voters. The constitutional amendment says reorganization must be accomplished by July 1.

Cason and Webster served on the Senate Reorganization Committee. The chairman, Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, was angry about missing the meeting. He said the governor's aide, Charles Valier, had told him the meeting was Friday.

"Apparently this is going to be a railroad situation and I'm terribly disappointed," Spradling said.

The citizens committee, appointed by Gov. Christopher S. Bond, came up with a bill similar to the one House passed but the senate rejected.

The governor's staff wrote the bill after sending questionnaires to committee members. Bond said he agreed with Cason and Webster that "sensitive areas should have Senate consent," but he told the committee he would not "compromise the goals of reorganization" just to ensure that there are checks and balances and absolute safeguards against political interference.

The best way to avoid political intervention is to expand the merit system, he said.

The proposed bill has 37 positions reporting directly to the governor, compared with 80 under the vetoed bill and 90 under the current setup, Bond said.

Cason and Webster, getting support from some committee members, wanted to retain Senate consent for the finance commissioner, who rules on bank charters, and the insurance commissioner, who licenses and regulates insurance companies.

Bond, who was out of the room when Webster and Cason talked, said he didn't think having Senate consent would necessarily take some positions out of politics, because politics play a large part in getting Senate approval in the first place.

"There were a number of people I didn't nominate," the governor said, "because I knew they would not be approved by the Senate for political reasons."

Although it was the final meeting of the citizens committee, Bond asked the members—representing government, business and education—to consult with him from now until the time reorganization takes effect.

Earlier, he said in an interview he would begin looking for someone to sponsor his bill in the legislature as soon as a final draft is prepared.

Threat of selling gold on free market is potent

BRUSSELS (AP) — The threat of the United States and six European countries to sell gold on the free market may shake the age-old confidence the little European has in a gold nest egg in his mattress.

Americans are forbidden by law to trade in gold or own it. But traditionally the French peasant or the German working man squirrels away gold coins as a hedge against inflation and the vagaries of government financial policies.

In periods of war or other trouble one could always buy something with gold, and there was a time when millions of marks would not buy a newspaper or a loaf of bread. Now even the price of gold can be lowered by a government that decides to dump some of its bullion onto the market.

In announcing Tuesday that the United States, Belgium, Britain, West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands and Switzerland were ending their two-tier system for marketing gold, Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the U.S. Federal Reserve System said that "whether, when, in what amounts, and in what ways" the U.S. government might sell some of its gold were questions to be decided later.

European experts predict there will be no massive sales, but the threat was a potent one. Wednesday the price of gold in London, to $90. That was nearly three times the price several years ago, but it was a worrying drop for owners of gold just the same.

Some experts view the seven nations' action as at least a "temporary demonization" of gold. The official price of $44.20 at which no transactions have been taking place, now has even less meaning than before.

The U.S. government has said that it wants to take gold out of the monetary system because there isn't enough of it to back the world's currencies. Though many governments, and France's especially, do not agree on abandoning gold, there is a general feeling that its importance has to be reduced. The new measuring rod for world currencies will be Special Drawing Rights, the "paper gold" whose quantity and value are set by international agreement.

In the long run, the official threat to sell gold will reduce its use in the monetary system and make it more like any other commodity that is bought and sold for its value in the economy.

In the short run, there may be greater use of gold by the nations' central banks in settling debts between countries.

With the official price at $44.20 an ounce and the free market price over $100, no central bank has wanted to part with its gold. Now it seems possible that some settlements will take place either at the market price or at prices negotiated between the central banks.

Stock market down despite forecasts

NEW YORK (AP) — A little more than two weeks ago the New York Stock Exchange distributed to member firms the consensus view of 46 leading forecasters. Not one of them foresaw lower stock prices in 1974.

Asked by the exchange's own economist, William Freund, "What are your feelings about the direction of stock prices in 1974?" about 95 per cent responded that the market would rise, while 5 per cent said there'd be no change.

Since the survey results were released to member firm planning officers the market has, so to speak, run out of power. About two weeks later the Dow Jones industrial average was nearly 100 points lower and falling.

Such a broken-cable descent is enough to shake anyone, even some of the hardy foreign investors who had been pouring their money into the market during September and October. A fall from that height doesn't produce a bounce.

Nevertheless, a random sampling of economists and market buffs of varying credentials, some of whom might have been included in Freund's survey, shows a remarkable degree of optimism, or maybe obstinacy.

While conceding the very rough estimate that for each percentage of energy shortfall you can deduct 1 per cent or more from the Gross National Product, they generally maintained their confidence.

Some in fact were already looking over the valley to the peaks beyond, maintaining that the energy shortage would galvanize the nation, spur it to a renewed dedication, and cause the economy to shed some old angle irons.

Domestic energy will now be produced in quantity rather than lying inert, said one. Production will take equal billing with ecology, said another. Waste and inefficiency will be eliminated, said several.

One forecaster who conducts daily polls and who is still synthesizing the results of interviews over the past few days went so far as to suggest the likelihood of a stock market boom beginning sometime in the next few months.

He maintained that in terms of mental attitude the American public has been in a recession for a month or so. He argued that when that point is reached, many people begin making their plans for the coming expansion.

A lot of people, he said, are looking at those low price-earnings ratios and for the first time in years are feeling the attraction of a little speculation.

Prodded for details, some forecasters maintained they were working night and day during the past week and were still in the midst of their analyses. Therefore, they said, it was difficult to document their optimism.

A state of mind, perhaps, and maybe a very odd one, too.

As analysts, institutions and individuals reach their conclusions over the next week a more conclusive pattern should emerge. Is it conceivable that all this bad news can be absorbed?

Crisis causes doubts

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market analysts are as divided as Washington officials on what to do about the energy shortage, and the sinking feeling sets in that maybe there really isn't much that can be done immediately.

While Washington debates the question of higher taxes and prices versus rationing as the better of two dismal choices, Wall Street searches in vain for the positive side of the crisis.

It is naive to assume that stock promoters will ever be stymied about finding short-term purchase recommendations, since their livelihood depends upon them, but they are now straining for choices.

The reason is that the full realization of what an energy shortage means is sweeping the nation like the winter's cold waves. But while the cold was predictable, a good many Wall Streeters failed to consider the impact of a fuel shortage.

Right up to the present, stock market letters have been filled with the usual year-end promotions for the best prospects for 1974 and tax switch candidates and stocks that look good in a recession and on and on in endless categories.

But where can the stock market go without plentiful energy?

Every household, every job, factory and farm depends upon energy. Rising productivity, which has given the world its current living standard, has been possible by the application of energy. Pull the plug and it all stops.

Indeed, every human body needs energy in the form of food, and it is significant that the Agriculture Department already has acknowledged that a fuel cutback can be expected to reduce the output of some farms.

Lionel D. Edie & Co., the highly regarded economic arm of Merrill Lynch, the brokerage house, concedes that "up until now, we have not expected the energy shortage to have a significant impact on total output in the United States or abroad."

Edie says that it is now attempting to quantify the impact on total production, spending and on various industries, and notes that even before the crisis developed it foresaw almost no economic growth through March.

"Thus it is obvious that it would not take much of a production loss from the oil shutdown to turn these growth rates negative, qualifying the pattern as a recession."

A prolonged shutdown in oil supplies by the Arabs, says Edie, "could mean major recessions in Germany and Japan that could begin by early next year and that could coincide with pronounced weakness here."

Every day that the oil shutdown lasts, says Edie, "the outlook for the next year becomes a bit more negative in terms of economic growth and corporate profits."

The true seriousness of the shortage is partially obscured by the boycott, which leads many people to conclude that the situation is temporary and correctable. But it is not, at least for many months.

Informed industry and government officials are talking not of any quick solution but are using words such as decades and lifetime. The problem was coming, boycott or not. It can't be solved by ending the boycott.

TEL AVIV (AP) — The POWs were on the way home, and all over Israel it was a time to laugh and a time to cry, sometimes a time to do both at one time.

At one o'clock in the morning, an army officer called on Nathan and Lea Avni to inform them that their son, Avidor, given up for dead on the Suez front, was on the list of prisoners to be released by the Egyptians. All of Zlatopolsky street followed him into the small apartment on the north side of Tel Aviv.

The mayor of Kfar Sava, a little town north of Tel Aviv, called at the home of Ezekiel Weisman to tell his parents he was on the prisoner list. His Honor had trouble maintaining his dignity as cousins and uncles and aunts swarmed over him with kisses, tears and embraces.

Weisman had just finished three years of army service on the Jordanian border and was getting ready to enter medical school when the war broke out.

A week later he was among the missing on the east bank of the Suez Canal.

"We shall have the biggest party one can have," the biochemist father announced at what already was building up to be the biggest instant house warming anyone in Kfar Sava could recall.

The news that Phantom pilot Geoffrey Peer, shot down more than three years ago by the Egyptians, was to be freed occasioned a special meeting of the elders in Kibbutz Mizrah, in the Jezzeel Valley.

The dashing pilot, born and raised in Columbus, Ohio, met his wife, Hagit, in the kibbutz. The leaders of the kibbutz pondered how they could hold a party at the same time they were in mourning for members of the community killed in the war. But Israel's only kibbutz manufacturing pork sausage was sure to arrive at some solution.

News of Peer's impending release was broadcast over the Israeli radio shortly before midnight. His mother, a pharmacist in Ramat Aviv, spent the rest of the night crying into the telephone to friends who called their congratulations.

Peer, a senior pilot, was shot down on June 30, 1970. Although his parents brought him to Israel when he was 12, the Egyptians insisted that his capture was proof that American pilots were flying for Israel.

When he ejected from his flaming jet over the desert, his older daughter was three years old and his younger nine months. Now Hagit is anxious to introduce him to a couple of dazzling strangers, seven years old and four and a half.

Amid the scenes of jubilation, scores of houses and apartments throughout the country were plunged into deep mourning. These were the homes of the families of missing soldiers whose names did not appear on the list of prisoners the Egyptians gave to the Red Cross. Presumably they are dead.

Granite Lodge No. 272 A.F. & A.M. will meet in stated communication Friday, Nov. 16, at 7:30 p.m., Masonic Temple, Broadway and Missouri. Visiting brethren always welcome.
Arthur L. McCune, W.M.
Lloyd C. Kennon, Sec'y.

Pettis County Post No. 16, The American Legion, will meet in regular session on Monday, November 19th, at the Legion Hall. NOTE: TIME CHANGE: Meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. All members and prospective new members are urged to attend.

Ann Landers

Owner blamed for run-over dog

Dear Ann Landers: This afternoon I saw a driver hit a small dog and drive on. I was so upset I didn't take the license number. It seemed more important to get the dog to the vet — if it was still alive.

Well, the dog was dead when I got to him, but it really wasn't the driver's fault. It was the fault of the owner who allowed his pet to run loose.

I would like that owner to know that his precious pet died with a crushed head, in a dirty gutter, with no one but a stranger who tried to shield him from the sun. And now the body lies in a garbage pail.

You will probably cry your eyes out and tell everyone how much you loved your dog, but I don't believe it. If you really loved your dog you'd have taken better care of him.

Thank you, Ann, for letting me get this off my chest. Perhaps someone will see himself in your column today. I hope so. — An Animal Lover From Atlanta.

Dear Atlanta: So do I. Thank you for writing.

Dear Ann: I never thought I'd write to you but I have a story to tell that might be useful to the girls who wonder why they don't get asked for a second date. Last night I took out a chick I've been looking after for three months. She's sensational-looking and I was dying to explore her head. Well, that dolly never shut her mouth to come up for air. She talked, talked, talked until I thought my mind would blow.

I dig smart birds but enough is enough and too much is plenty. I hope you will print this, Ann, and if Miss Non-Sto-Talker-of-1973 thinks I mean her, I sure do. — Boinged in Racine.

Dear Boinged: The Bible tells us that Samson slew one thousand Philistines with the jawbone of an ass. Through the ages, countless romances have been killed with the same weapon and it's a crying shame.

The smart girl knows how to listen. If she is so busy parading her knowledge that she doesn't pause to ask a question or give a fellow a chance to express an opinion, she lacks something more vital than intellectuality. It is called common sense.

Dear Ann Landers: How old does a girl have to be before she can:

(a) Go on a date with a boy in a car.

(b) Make a long-distance telephone call to a friend and talk awhile.

(c) Shave her legs and armpits.

(d) Go on an overnight camping trip with no chaperone, just a couple of friends.

Thank you. — Trouble in the Family

Dear T.: (a) When she's a freshman in high school — if she has good judgment and a record of dependability.

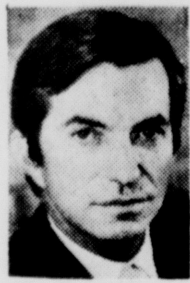

(b) How far away does the friend live? How long is "awhile?" Is she willing to pay for the call out of her allowance?

(c) It depends on what's there. Generally, 13 or 14.

(d) Are the friends boys or girls? If they are boys, I say nix. If girls, I'd say 17. You are welcome.

Confidential to Want To Be Honest: Fine. But being honest doesn't mean telling everything you know. Kindness is important, too. Don't pass on information that can't help and might hurt.

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Elderly man's memory slips

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am a man past 80 years of age. We just celebrated our 59th wedding anniversary. We even have five great-grandsons. I can shave with a straight razor. My hands are steady. Now the problems. The past six months I have been troubled with dizziness. When I change from the vertical to horizontal, especially when I lie down on my right side, the room turns around with me it seems. The doctor prescribed Antivert pills, but they did not help.

My second problem is forgetfulness. If I go in the next room for something, I can't remember what I went for. It is very embarrassing to forget names that I knew for years. Do you think this is due to the drying up of the capillaries leading to the brain? I have angina pectoris, but I always carry my nitroglycerin tablets with me, which give me immediate relief.

Please write about my two problems. It may help others as well.

Dear Reader — You are to be congratulated on such a full and obviously rewarding life. And, you seem to do very well in expressing your problem.

I'm afraid that all of your problems are related to the same thing. The changes in your arteries are probably causing your dizziness, memory problems and your angina. People often forget that the disease that causes heart attacks and angina is really a disease of the arteries. It can affect any artery in the body. That is exactly why heart transplants and artificial hearts will never be satisfactory for treating the majority of heart disease problems. What we need, in most cases, is a way to cure or prevent the disease in the arteries, all over the body.

Your dizziness is most likely due to the fatty deposits in the arteries that supply blood to the balance mechanism in the ear. And, your doctor was right to give you Antivert. You should go back to him, though, as he may want to change the amount or type of medicine.

You should do your best to cut down on the fat in your food. It does help if a person is eating too much fat, particularly too much saturated fat. In doing so, though, don't neglect to get your protein, vitamins, and minerals.

Even when people have memory problems in later years, there is some evidence that memory training techniques will help some. I'd suggest that you look in your local bookstore for some ordinary books on memory training and try some of their suggested techniques. You can train the memory, at least within limits. It might even be fun to try it.

THE SEDALIA DEMOCRAT

Sedalia, Missouri, Friday, Nov. 16, 1973—Section B

'Openness' of Municipal Building planned

If one word could describe the new Municipal Building, it would be "openness."

From the receptionist at the front door to the repeated use of glass throughout the $750,000 structure and the wide, spacious lobby, the theme is noted throughout the building.

Don Buller, one of the architects who designed the building, said this was the original intent of City Council members during the preliminary planning stages.

"They wanted the building to be three things: pleasant, functional and an asset to the city. They also wanted to convey a feeling of welcome to everyone who entered the building," he said.

"The intent was to make the seat of city government open, in contrast to the often stereotyped view of a city hall — a monumental building," he added.

The use of the large glass windows at the top of the building was to "bring natural light to the center of the building," he said.

Similarly, he added, the repeated use of glass in individual offices was designed to avoid "closeting any element of city government. We wanted to open them all to the public so no aspect of city government would be foreboding to a newcomer."

Open door policy

The mayor's office, too, is designed with the "open door policy," according to Buller. The mayor's secretary sits at her desk on the second floor hallway behind no partitions. The mayor's office, itself, is immediately adjacent to the hallway and not closed off as it was in the old building.

The first-floor lobby, Buller said, was designed so it would be a showplace for artwork. A citizens committee currently is working on acquiring art for this area of the building.

The City Council chambers were designed in a "pie shape" so the council would be the focal point. "By having the council seated in the center at one table, this allows the audience to have better visual and audio contact with city government, and vice versa," Buller said.

Also, Buller pointed out, the theater seats for the audience and the carpeting on the floor give the chamber a "professional atmosphere."

Besides the open and professional aspects of the design, the building also is functional. Buller noted that the offices on the second floor are flexible, so any future expansion of city offices can be made within the present confines.

Buller also cited the functional aspect of the brick floor of the first-floor lobby. "The use of brick provides both an aesthetic atmosphere ... and is easily maintained. The floor will never wear out," he said.

No building is constructed without first overcoming problems. And the Municipal Building was no exception.

Buller said the police station, for instance, had to have its own entrances so when the rest of the city offices closed for the day, the building could be cleaned and maintained while the police department carried on its normal duties. Similarly, he said, the building can be locked while the police department entrances remain open.

Faced a challenge

Another problem, Buller noted, was that the building had to be designed within the confines of the property adjacent to the old city hall, and not on the land the old building rested on. "Since the old city hall wasn't to be torn down until the new one was constructed, this did present a challenge." However, he acknowledged, "the end result came out very well."

Of course now the old building has been razed and in its place is a "front yard" of grass often erroneously referred to as a "mall," Buller said.

But whether you call it a mall or a yard, the open area gives downtown Sedalia an island of green, Buller said.

"The use of the fountain, flag, grass and trees in the yard also give the building a human scale," Buller said.

Other aspects of the new building include a "controlled environment," according to Buller. "With a controlled climate," he said, "none of the outside windows are capable of opening. This helps to preserve documents, furniture and tax records."

The structure itself is a non-combustible steel frame, with non-combustible walls and a brick veneer. Soon to be completed, also, Buller said, are facilities for handicapped persons, such as wheel-chair ramps. He said once these improvements are made, the building will conform with national and state standards for the handicapped.

Buller also noted that the building cannot be expanded vertically. He said if the building is to be expanded, the city probably will add on in a southerly direction at the site of the present downtown fire station.

Present parking facilities, with nearby city parking lots, are adequate for the building, Buller said.

"All in all," Buller said, "we wanted to provide an atmosphere of openness and welcome to anybody who gets within a half block of the building."

From the enthusiastic response of city employees, Buller and his partner Burl Sammons have obviously performed their job well.

Sedalia's government moves into a new home

Building inspector gladly leaves former city 'home'

Glad to leave

Woodrow Garrison, (right) Sedalia's building inspector, and his assistant, Nelson Lee, look over forms prior to beginning a day's work from their new office in the Municipal Building. Considering his position with the city, as well as safety factors, Garrison was one of the most pleased when city officials were able to move out of the old city hall and into the new city complex.

By MARY LOU VOSSMEYER
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Woodrow Garrison, Sedalia's building inspector, was perhaps the only city official to feel a pang at seeing the old city hall leveled to the ground.

"It was almost like leaving home," Garrison said. "I've been in and out of it for 21 years ... and I kind of miss it. But I have bid it good riddance ... I'm glad we're in the new building now."

Garrison said the most impressive feature of the new building is the privacy of individual offices. Recalling the old City Hall, he told of times when private conversations were virtually impossible and many desks were crowded into one room.

For one whose business is buildings, Garrison was attached to the old city hall in a way that only another builder would appreciate. But this did not keep him from honest criticism of his former office building.

He said it was "too old, unsafe and a fire hazard ... there wasn't even hot water. In fact, the only hot water was in the steam heated registers," Garrison said.

He also said the old building was almost impossible to keep clean because "as fast as you would sweep the floor, more dirt would fall down off the ceiling."

"It was very embarrassing in the old building," Garrison added, "because the building department is the first or second place that outsiders look ... with a building like that they could get the impression that city administration was not interested in the community."

That is why the new Municipal Building is such an asset to the community, Garrison explained. It makes a good impression on prospective industries. Garrison added that the Municipal Building's good looks might encourage more improvements in the downtown area.

He said that considering the way it was built, "it's amazing that the old building stood as many years as it did."

The old building had only two feet of footing under it. Today, foundations have to be below frost level, between 34 and 36 inches deep.

Garrison said the old building had two layers of eight inch rock under it, but that this foundation was merely laid on top of the ground. There may have been mortar under this but it had since rotted away, Garrison said.

"But this is the way they used to build buildings," he added. "Those rocks had hardly any deterioration at all ... but a building is only as good as its foundation."

Garrison noted that the Municipal Building has a foundation of ready-mixed concrete with reinforced steel rods.

Garrison also said that he disproved a century-old rumor that long ago a creek made its course through the area where the Municipal Building now stands. He said he remembers his grandfather and a lot of other old-timers talking about the rumor. However, when workmen began digging the Municipal Building's foundation, he hunted for the old creek bed and never found it.

He explained that if you dig deep enough, you can tell whether a creek bed existed because, even if the bed was filled, it never packs down like solid earth. He added that digging went as deep as 20 feet in preparing for the foundation of the Municipal Building.

To verify Garrison's findings, Nelson Lee, assistant building inspector, said he spent a lot of time in the County Court house poring through old pictures of Sedalia. He said some pictures were from the late 1800's and there were no signs of a creek running through the Municipal Building site.

Regardless of whether the new building stands on an old creek bed, Garrison said he is thankful that he "had the privilege of playing a part in seeing that it (the Municipal Building) was built to the architect's specifications."

"It's here," he said. "It's a reality and I didn't think it would ever happen in my lifetime."

Special session announcement next Wednesday

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Christopher S. Bond says he will have an announcement next Wednesday regarding the possibility of his calling a special session of the legislature to deal with reorganization of state government.

Bond has been considering requests of several legislative leaders to call a special session, but he said Thursday he would do so only if he thought it could be fruitful.

It was rumored at the capital the governor could call the lawmakers back as early as Nov. 26, the Monday following Thanksgiving.

"I have set no date, because I have made no decision," Bond said in a news conference.

No-discharge hearing is set for Big Piney

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A hearing has been set for Jan. 16 by the Missouri Clean Water Commission on its no-discharge ruling for the Big Piney River.

It will be at the high school auditorium in Houston, Mo., at 7 p.m.

Jack K. Smith, executive secretary of the commission, said the Federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) "is asking us to lower our standards by rescinding this ruling and we don't want to do it."

The ruling is part of state water quality standards and the commission is required by law to hold a public hearing before changing it.

The state standards were revised last spring to comply with the Federal Water Pollution Control Act. The Big Piney no-discharge rule is the only part of the revised standards the EPA has not approved.

City clerk enjoys better conditions

City Clerk Ralph Dedrick exhaled a puff of cigar smoke, leaned back in his swivel chair and said, "Well, I guess the best thing about our new building is that it is a lot quieter here than it ever was in the old building ... the atmosphere of the entire office has changed."

Dedrick also noted that the city offices are more isolated at the new Municipal Building. He said the old City Hall building had no lobby to speak of and there was only a thin partition between the city clerk's office and city collector.

"There was a certain amount of confusion and distraction from traffic through the old building and at times it was like Grand Central Station," Dedrick added.

Likes the quiet

His hand a blur, City Clerk Ralph Dedrick finds the quiet and relative isolation of offices in the new Municipal Building a big help in performing his various duties. As most other city employees, Dedrick finds almost everything in the new building a vast improvement over the old city hall.

former office disassembled brick by brick, Dedrick replied, "I'm not crying about it ... but every so often I remember hearing loose gravel or bricks falling in the old building and I'd wonder when one of the walls would finally collapse."

Dedrick said it's difficult to pinpoint a particular benefit of the new Municipal Building because "anything you look at here is an improvement."

But there are many seemingly insignificant changes that have made life a little easier for Dedrick and his co-workers. And they all add up.

"For example, it's clean and roomy ... and the wheels don't fall off my chair anymore," Dedrick laughed.

Father charged in shooting death

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The father of an 8-year-old boy was arraigned Thursday on a first-degree murder charge in his son's slaying.

Tillman West, 49, appeared before Magistrate Charles L. Stitt and then was taken to the county jail and held without bond. A preliminary hearing was set for Nov. 20.

The victim, Daniel West, died early Thursday at Children's Mercy Hospital. Police said he was shot in the head about 11 p.m. Wednesday while watching television with his mother. Authorities said the father was not living at home at the time of the incident.

City's engineer likes lighting

Good impressions

City Engineer Bob Cunningham is relieved that he no longer has to 'apologize' for old city hall building. Cunningham said that in the past city officials were afraid out-of-town businessmen seeking information "would get a bad impression of Sedalia," which might adversely affect a decision to locate here. (Democrat-Capitol Photo)

The fluorescent lighting in the Municipal Building is a far cry from the single bulbs in the old City Hall. This improvement may seem slight, but for Bob Cunningham, city engineer, it's not to be taken lightly. Cunningham, who sports a pair of shiny wire-rimmed glasses, spends a lot of time perched at his drafting table. He says the lighting in the Municipal Building is much easier on his eyes when he works with graphs and maps of the city's streets and sewers. "The lighting here is much better and that is so important when I'm doing drafting work," he said.

More important than the improved lighting is the fact that the Municipal Building is fire-proofed.

Charts and maps are essential for the city engineer's office since the sewers are underground. If there had been a fire in the old, hazardous city hall building, "it would have cost the city close to $200,000 in surveying expenses to replace those maps," Cunningham said.

He added that the old building was so dusty it was hard to keep maps and records clean. "That old building was in such poor condition, it was embarrassing when out-of-town people came for information on commercial or industrial sites. We were often afraid they would get a bad impression of Sedalia," Cunningham said.

He doesn't have to apologize in the least, however, for his new surroundings. While his office, itself, is a tremendous advancement over his former headquarters, Cunningham's contentment doesn't stop there. Located adjacent to his room is the 20 foot by 38 foot drafting office, the largest room on the second floor.

Designed to utilize the optimum amount of natural light, with its wall-length windows on the east, the drafting room houses 4 large work tables, numerous filing cabinets, and countless graphs and maps.

It is also the working area of Cunningham's assistant Gary Johnson — that is, when Johnson's not out overseeing some public works projects. He, too, believes the area "is 100 per cent" better it's predecessor.

Cunningham has received nothing but compliments on the new Municipal Building. It is planned efficiently, and has more space and better facilities. With those advantages, it certainly should be easy to run a more efficient office, he said.

License inspector spends much time out of office

License Inspector Bob Brown ... "the building is really outstanding"

"It's quite a contrast," Bob Brown said while picking up the phone in his sparkling new office on the second floor of the Municipal Building.

"This is something that's long overdue, and I think it makes a big difference in the attitude everyone has toward work," Brown says.

As city license inspector Brown spends much of his time out of the new building, but he seems quite satisfied with the surrounding and thinks other Sedalians are too. "Everything I need is here," Brown continued. But, as much as he enjoys his new surroundings, Brown doesn't spend as much time in the Municipal Building as do many of his fellow city employees. Instead, he can often be found in the kitchens of local restaurants or knee-deep in the financial records of local businesses.

"It's just all part of the job," he said. As City License and Restaurant Inspector, Brown is responsible for insuring that local food establishments meet local and state health and safety standards. He also conducts spot-check audits of various local businesses to insure that they have paid their proper city merchant's license fee.

In the past year, Brown has also acted to curb the selling cigarette packages not bearing a city sales stamp and was partially responsible for the confiscation in August of 1,500 pounds of improperly transported and unsanitary meat that had been delivered to a local food store.

Brown's combined duties of license and restaurant inspector were first assumed by present city building inspector Woodrow Garrison in June, 1964. In September, 1967, Garrison was named city building inspector and his duties were then transferred to City Dairy Inspector Raymond Whittall. In August, 1971, Brown was named to his present post.

Bond to propose special drug and crime section

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — The establishment of a special drug and organized crime investigation section in the state highway patrol will be part of his Legislative package in January, Gov. Christopher S. Bond said Wednesday.

Several bills to create a Missouri Bureau of Investigation failed in the last Legislative session.

Bond said the new section would give the state additional investigation and laboratory capacities and would provide better services for local law enforcement officials.

The governor, speaking at a Republican party luncheon in Springfield, said:

"The people of Missouri are very concerned about drug abuse and crimes related to it. They are concerned because they know the problem is not confined just to the cities or to any particular social or economic group. These days, drug problems are as likely to occur in rural areas or in a comfortable suburb as they are in the inner city.

"Statistics show that many crimes, and particularly those against property, can be traced to an addictive need for mind and body-destroying drugs like heroin.

"Furthermore, organized crime gains much of its strength from the support of drug addicts.

"The menace of hard drug abuse does exist here in Missouri, whether we like to think so or not."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Gov. Winfield Dunn says President Nixon will meet privately with the nation's Republican governors in Memphis next week.

Dunn said in Nashville Wednesday that he has been advised by the White House that the President would meet the governors on Tuesday, the last day of the GOP governors' winter conference.

Dunn described the planned meeting as similar to sessions Nixon has been holding with Republican members of Congress on the Watergate scandal.

The White House declined comment on Dunn's announcement.

But what can be expected when Jacqueline Onassis is in the audience and Andy Williams is singing?

Townsend, son of a Timonium school principal, is working on his doctorate and Miss Kennedy is a senior in college.

Big Christmas display to feel energy pinch

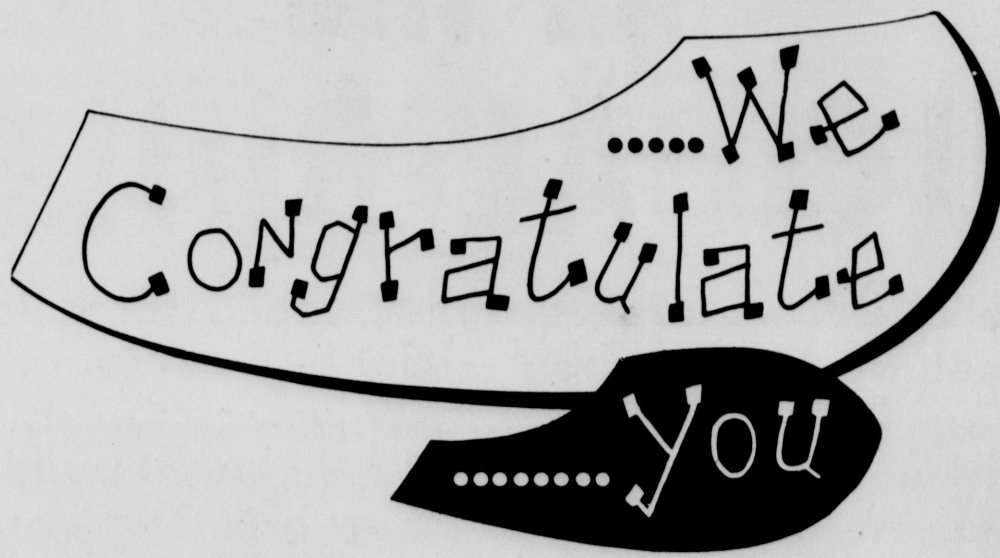

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP)—A big Christmas display using 125,000 miniature lights at the Shrine of Our Lady of the Snows will feel the pinch of the energy crisis this year.

There will be the same number of lights this year and they will burn just as brightly as in the past. But a spokesman for the sponsoring group says a 20 per cent cutback has been ordered in display time to conserve electricity.

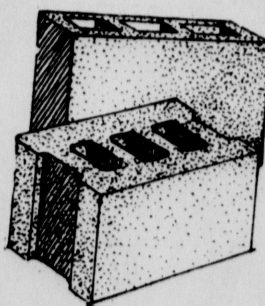

The effect of the cutback is that the miniature lights strung along a mile-and-a-half route through the 200-acre shrine will be turned on only three hours on week nights. In past years, the lights have burned for five hours every night.

The "Christmas Way of Lights" display runs from Nov. 23 through Jan. 6, and it attracted about 280,000 persons last year.

Nothing but praise for new city hall

It's hard to find anyone who worked in the old city hall who has anything but compliments for the Municipal Building. And Debbie McFarland, 421 East 16th, is no exception, even though she only worked two days in the old building before moving to the new structure.

Miss McFarland, employed as lobby receptionist, said, "There's no comparison between this and the old building. Just about everyone who comes in comments about how nice it is."

City Collector Mrs. Opal Hugelman, 1003 West Third, agrees wholeheartedly. "I think it's out of this world," she said. "I've worked in the other building 10 years."

Mrs. Hugelman said she recalled her office was right in it's busiest period at the time of the move, selling city stickers and collecting taxes, but she enjoyed serving the taxpayers in the new office.

"I also think the public restrooms are a great addition, something we've needed," Mrs. Hugelman said. "We had only one set of restrooms in the entire old building."

Mrs. Hugelman said she was particularly glad the City Council had new chambers. "Our offices in the old building had been recently remodeled, so they weren't too bad," she said. "But, the council room was a disgrace. I didn't think I would live to see the day we moved over here," she continued.

If Mrs. Hugelman seemed somewhat pessimistic, it is not without good reason. According to the records of City Clerk Ralph Dedrick, general obligation bond proposals to building a new city hall were defeated in 1919, 1933, 1939 and 1968 before a proposal to fund the building's construction with city sales tax revenue passed in 1971.

One other proposal, Dedrick said, was actually passed in 1940. However, the plan was scuttled when the outbreak of World War II swiftly depleted the ranks of Works Progress Administration (WPA) workers, who were to have built the building at a considerable savings.

Councilman Ira Knox is particularly appreciative of his new surroundings. "he also served on the council in the mid-1940's, when the old building received one of its many remodeling face-lifts designed to provide more office space."

"We lacked space and the proper environment for council action even back then," Knox recalled. "I'm just sorry it took so long to finally get it," he said.

Councilman George Dugan Jr., indicated he was particularly pleased to be serving at the time of the new building's introduction because his great-grandfather, George E. Dugan, participated in the erection in the original city hall.

"I'm naturally proud because of that and also because the building is such a great step forward for the entire city," Dugan said.

Wide open

This view of the main hallway of the Municipal Building is what the receptionist sees during her working day. To the left are various city offices while to the right, at the top of the stairs, is the mayor's office. Adjacent to Mayor Jerry Jones' working area is a conference room, while across the hall from his office is the economic development department's office space. An elevator remains to be added to the modern structure.

GM proposes emission controls be taken off

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors is urging adoption of a plan to save gasoline by taking emission controls off about 40 million late-model cars. It claims savings could amount to five billion gallons a year.

The savings could be more than three times greater than that in 10 years if proposed federal emissions standards were relaxed, General Motors President Edward N. Cole said in an interview Wednesday.

His statement came as plans for gasoline surtaxes or rationing continued to be discussed in Washington.

"We've got some people in Washington who are acquainting people on the Public Works Committee with this proposition," Cole said. "It's being put into perspective."

The five billion gallons is seven per cent of the 69.2 billion gallons of gasoline used in U.S. passenger cars in 1971, the last year for which figures are available, according to the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association.

Other motor vehicles used 28.2 billion gallons of gasoline, the association said.

Sedalia's government moves into a new home

Police department goes modern

Law and order in Sedalia finally has joined the ranks of computerized progress and modern convenience. The Sedalia Police Department has a new home.

In contrast to the nineteenth-century building that once housed the police department, the new offices in the Municipal Building are complete with 20th-century trimmings such as closed circuit television monitors, an exercise room for patrolmen, and $18,000 worth of radio equipment.

Perhaps Sgt. William Shobe best described the patrolmen's overall impression of the building when he said, "It's such a change from what we had ... all I can do is rejoice."

But Sgt. Shobe is not the only patrolman rejoicing over the new facilities and modern conditions of the police department's new offices.

Officer William Erwin said he is impressed with the convenience of the building and thankful for the privacy it provides.

"You don't have a lot of people running in and out of anymore ... I haven't quite adjusted to it yet," he said.

Officer Virgil Frazier said he felt department morale should improve with the move into the Municipal Building. He also said he was most impressed by the privacy of the new offices.

"It's good that we don't have the public in and out of here all the time to hear and see what's going on," he said.

Sgt. Shobe, a 12-year member of the police department, agreed that the new building would have an uplifting effect on the patrolmen's morale. He also admitted that they all had to adjust to the new facilities.

"In the old station, the guys used to put their feet on the desks. But it's so nice here, that you just don't feel right doing that. That's definitely a change of attitude and we really enjoy working here," Shobe said.

Officer Levoy City was a bit more skeptical about an overall attitude change.

"It might change the attitude around here. The working conditions are better but it's still the same work. At least you rarely get depressed in this new building," he said.

The patrolmen agreed that new police facilities have been long overdue. As City put it, "We finally have something that really looks like a police station."

Power punch

While passing time before going on duty, Officer Russ Shoemaker, left, worked out on the punching bag in the police gym while his partner, Officer Jerry Sanders, watched. At least one punch proved to be more powerful than the others because it sent the punching bag (black spot, upper left) flying off the hook and across the room. The gym is equipped with a wide variety of gym equipment for the officer's use in their off-duty time.

Police department cellblock ... modern and sanitary confinement

Miller is delighted with new facilities

For the past few months, Police Chief Miller, has been reigning from cloud nine ... and from a newly furnished and carpeted office.

Miller says his attitude toward work has received a shot of adrenalin since the police department moved into the Municipal Building last July.

"This new building has lifted my spirits and my attitude about work. And that's not just my imagination. I've seen a boost of morale among the other men here too, and if this doesn't boost it, I don't know what will."

Miller recalls that life in the old City Hall Building was "like working in a barn."

He said that in the 18 years he has been with the department, he has had to operate in a makeshift police station with few, poorly arranged, facilities.

"We even had to use public restrooms — or rather, the public used ours," Miller said.

"The jail itself was dilapidated and dirty. You couldn't get rid of it with soap because it was the kind of dirt that collects over years and years. I hated to put anyone, especially a woman, in that type of facility," Miller added.

Miller also said that in the old building his office was used as a contraband room. At times Miller was exiled from his own office because it was filled with items that could be used as evidence in court.

Miller no longer shares his office with such material. The Municipal Building has a special room where contraband can be kept under lock and key. The building also has a weapons storage room and one for surplus uniforms.

The new police station even has a line-up stage that is vaguely reminiscent of "Dragnet" scenes. But this one is less dramatic and a bit more practical than the Hollywood line-ups.

The stage is marked with height measurements and is flooded with lights of the five basic colors. Miller explained that colored lights bring out the natural tone of a suspect's complexion.

Miller is particularly proud of the security garage door that is controlled by a button in the dispatcher's office. He said if a patrolman has a prisoner in his car he can radio ahead and the dispatcher will open the door. As soon as the car is inside the garage, the door clamps shut.

"If a prisoner jumps out of the car and tries to escape, the only place he can run is where we want him to — into the booking room," Miller said.

A facility that delights both Miller and the patrolmen is the exercise room. Miller hopes his men will get enough exercise there to stay in top physical condition.

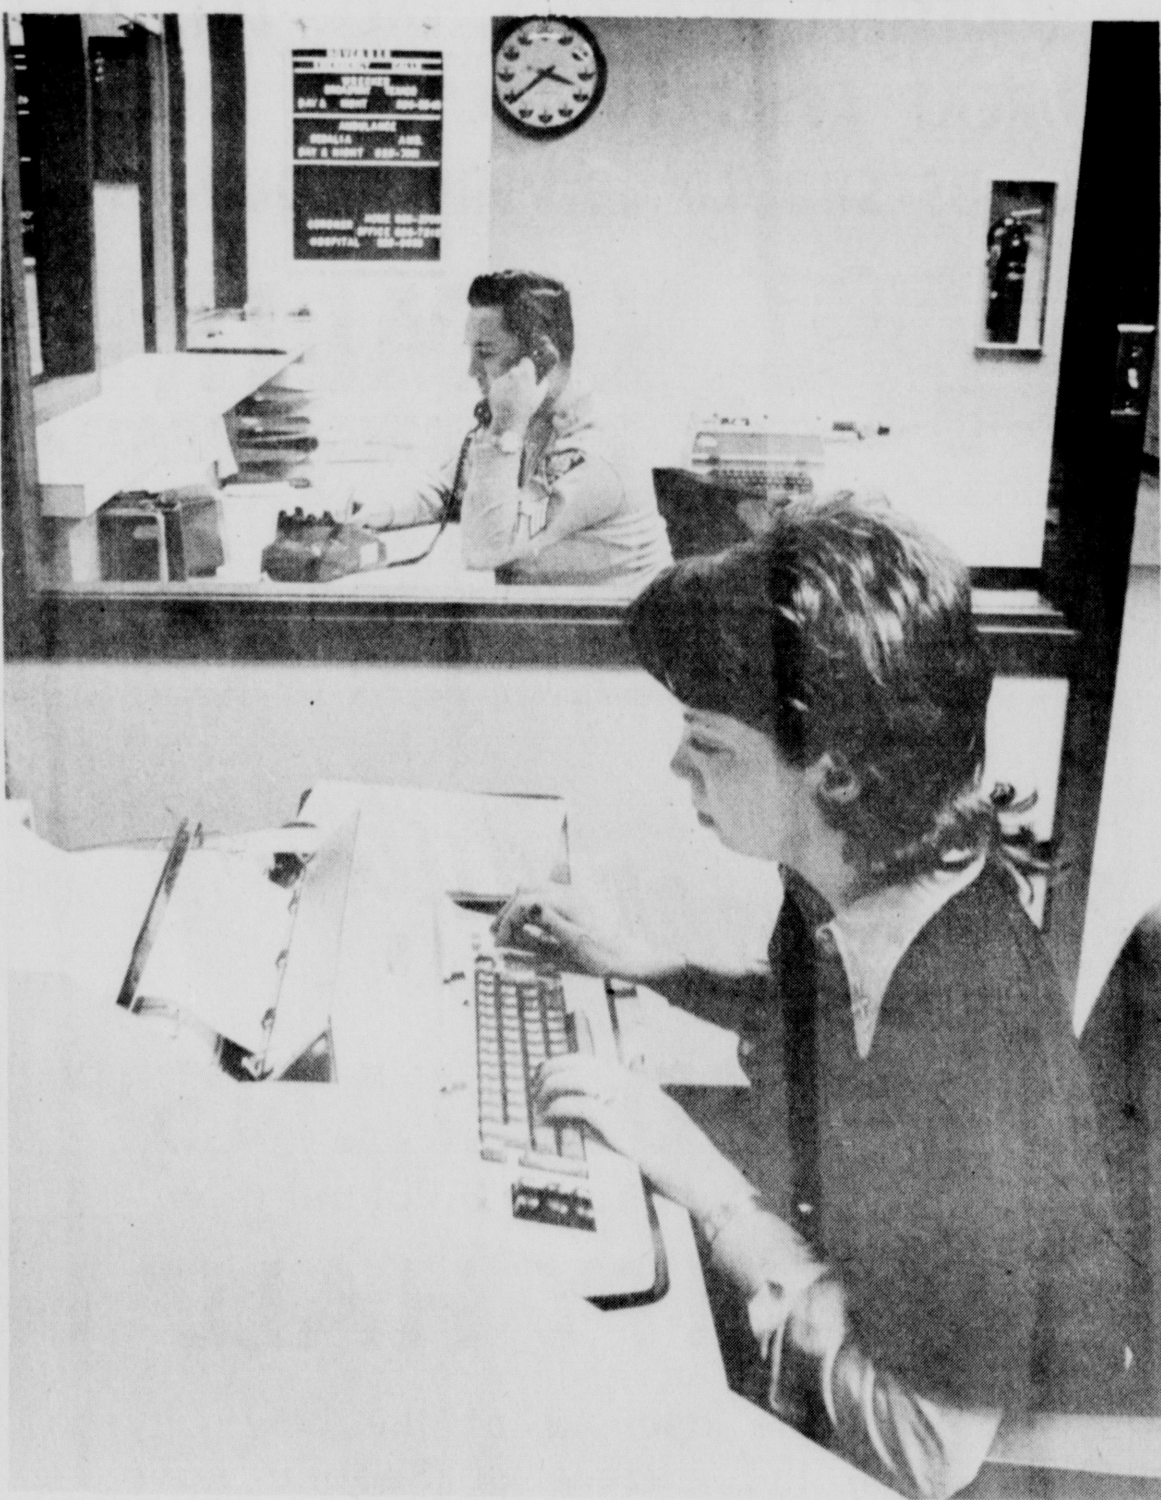

"Our men used to have to walk beats," Miller said, "but times have changed and we took the policeman off his feet and put him on his seat. So, it's easy to develop the 'policeman's protuberance.'"

The modern conveniences of the new police department have not tempted Miller to become "soft." In fact, he said he is able to do better work because "the atmosphere induces you to feel more like doing your work."

Miller says he wonders "how we got along in the old building. Though it's been there during my lifetime, when I saw it being torn down, I had no regrets."

New P.D. facilities

Susan Britt, dispatcher, is running a license check while Sgt. Joe Bass takes a telephone call during their shifts in the new Municipal Building's police department facilities. The expanded office space presents quite a contrast to the former "cubbyhole" occupied by officers assigned to desk duty.

New court martial is halted

GRANDVIEW, Mo. (AP) — A temporary injunction by a U.S. District Court in Washington, D.C., has temporarily halted a new court martial of former Air Force M.Sgt. Raymond DeChamplain, Lisbon, Conn., charged with passing classified information to Soviet officials.

The court martial was scheduled to begin at Richards-Gebaur Air Force Base here Thursday.

DeChamplain, 42, was convicted in November, 1971, and sentenced to a 15-year term at the Fort Leavenworth disciplinary barracks. He is now being held in the stockade at Richards-Gebaur awaiting a new trial.

Defense attorneys have asked that the government be enjoined from further prosecution of DeChamplain and the district court must now review the case.

The legal move had the effect of moving DeChamplain's trial from the military to civilian courts.

If the district court denies the injunction, the Air Force could then proceed with its new trial of DeChamplain, an Air Force officer said.

DeChamplain was charged in July, 1971, and later a military court found him guilty of passing military secrets, meeting with agents of a country unfriendly to the U.S., and passing classified documents while stationed in Bangkok.

Sedalia government moves into new home

Sedalia Municipal Building product of city sales tax

By JACK SCHICHT
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

If you ever doubt the power of the penny, take a look at the new building at Second and Kentucky. A heck of a lot of pennies built it.

The new Sedalia Municipal Building is the product of the one per cent city sales tax. A penny out of every dollar you spend in Sedalia goes into the city treasury. And since January, 1971, when the sales tax went into effect here, the city has taken in about $700,000 annually from the tax.

"We just couldn't have built it without the sales tax," said Sedalia Mayor Jerry Jones. "Financially, the city was in extremely tight circumstances prior to the sales tax election (in September, 1970).

"The only other way we could have built it would have meant discontinuing or cutting back city services to come up with the necessary money," he added.

Jones said that the construction of the Municipal Building is the fourth city improvement to be financed by the sales tax revenue.

"When we presented the issue to the voters, we said the sales tax revenue would be used four ways: to improve wages for city employees, to build a new fire station in the west end of town, to build a new park (Centennial) and for improved city facilities," he said.

At the time, Jones recalled, the term

"improved city facilities" meant either refurbishing the old city hall or building a new one at the same site. After an inspection of the old building, the city decided to build a new structure.

In September, 1971, the City Council asked city residents to approve the sale of $600,000 in general obligation bonds to finance the construction of the new building. In effect, the city fathers asked the voters to let the city borrow the money and pay it back over a 10-year period. Voters approved the bond issue election by an almost 9-to-1 majority.

Jones said the city could have saved the sales tax revenues until it had enough money to pay for the building, but he added that this would have meant cutting back other city services that were being financed by the sales tax.

In March and April, 1972, the entire $600,000 in bonds were sold at 4.5 per cent interest. The sale was made through Perry, Adams and Lewis, Kansas City investment bankers, who in turn later gave the city a check for $600,000.

Jones noted that if the city would issue bonds today, it probably would not be able to sell them at under a five to six per cent interest rate. Municipal bonds, although they yield a relatively low rate of interest, are desirable because they provide a tax shelter for profits. "We were real pleased to acquire the 4.5 per cent rate of interest," Jones said.

In March, 1972, final plans were approved and two months later the city advertised and later accepted a bid of $750,000 for construction of the building.

Jones said at the time the bonds were sold, the city was $4 million from its bonded indebtedness capacity. In explaining why the city did not seek the issuance of $750,000 in bonds, Jones said, "We wanted to hold the debt down as low as possible. We knew that about $150,000 would be available (in the city treasury)."

Jones also pointed out that early estimates of the cost of the new building were put at $600,000.

The city's first $600,000 payment on the principal of the $600,000 debt is due in May, Jones said. The city has already been making payments on the interest, he added. The city also has the option to retire the bonds at any time by paying off the debt in one payment.

Jones also explained that the actual cost of borrowing the $600,000 to pay for the construction and architect fees will be lower than 4.5 per cent, the rate of interest, since the original $600,000 given the city by the investment bankers drew interest until it was used.

Jones said the building is now insured against fire, liability, wind and hail damage "at more than what it cost to build it." He said it would cost more now to build it due to inflation.

Mayor Jerry Jones ... something Sedalia can be proud of"

Meter department head says incentive increased

Close-up work

Being supervisor of the Sedalia parking meter department involves more than personnel management and writing parking tickets, as shown by David Schick here. In his position, Schick says, he does almost every job his department is called on to perform — including intricate repair work on damaged parking meters.

David Schick, meter department supervisor, tinkered with the gears to a city parking meter timer and said, "Well, sure I'm busy, but I can talk to you while I'm working."

And talk he did, twisting and turning a copper-colored ticker all the while. Schick rambled on about his work in the new Municipal Building, stopping now and then to recall some of the hardships he encountered while working in the old city hall building.

"In the old building you could dust your desk at night and go back the next morning and find more dust. In fact, you could get dirty just doing nothing ... but we were always busy," he said.

Schick was impressed with the cleanliness of the Municipal Building. He boasted that the shiny linoleum floors look and stay much cleaner than the painted concrete in the old building.

Schick also appreciates not having to do janitorial work in the new building. He said that in the old City Hall, the Meter Department staff had to sweep and mop the floors, replace light bulbs and empty trash cans. But now, those tasks are but a memory and are taken care of by custodians.

Schick, who worked in the old building almost eight years, said he was "never more happy than when we moved into the new building."

He also said the new facilities in the Municipal Building are "bound to lift the morale here." He said that when he worked in the old building, there wasn't enough incentive to take care of the facilities, but "now we have nicer things to work with and we appreciate it more ... and take care of it."

Schick explained that though his official title is "supervisor," he really is a meter mechanic ... and bonafide jack-of-all-trades. "I do almost every job around here ... in fact, I've done just about everything in this office," he said.

Schick mentioned that in addition to better lighting, more storage space, and cleaner facilities, the Meter Department now has its own vault. He said that in the past, money collected from meters or parking tickets had to be transferred to the City Collector's vault. There is now space in the back rooms of the Meter Department to count and roll coins. In the old building, the money "was wrapped right out in the open where anyone could see it" and perhaps tempt potential thieves, Schick said.

The Meter Department also has its own scooter garage right outside its back door. Schick said that previously his men "had to go clear around the outside, in back of the building to get to the scooter garage."

The arrangement of the new Meter Department is clearly more prudent and private than what it was in the old building ... and Schick likes it that way.

"Now I can keep a closer eye on my help," he quipped. Schick added that the only thing he really dislikes about his new offices is that they are located right under staircase. "But I'd rather be under the staircase here than in the old building," he added.

OATS based here

Thanks to the citizens of Sedalia who voted to construct the new Municipal Building, and Councilman Carl Franklin, who helped secure office space in the new structure, Older Adults Transportation System coordinator Charles Haley is now permanently located in Sedalia.

Haley, formerly an Air Force senior master sergeant stationed at Whiteman AFB, assumed his post in July, when the program began in the 16-county mid-Missouri area he supervises.

Although he formerly worked in the OATS office in Warrensburg two days a week, Haley began his permanent Municipal Building residency when a secretary was added to his staff Nov. 1. While now permanently headquartered in Sedalia, Haley by no means restricts himself to Pettis County ... he's also in charge of OATS operations in the 15 other district counties.

"Each community has a county committee representative and I keep in touch with them," Haley said. "I also supervise all the OATS buses in the territory, work with the drivers, make monthly bus schedules and make sure that sanitary, safe conditions exist."

The monthly schedule-making process occupies a major portion of his time, Haley indicated. "We try to see to it that as many people as possible are served in the best way possible," he said. "That's why our schedules are so individualized. We try to account for the desires and wishes of as many of our patrons as possible."

Because he never occupied an office in the old city hall building and only visited it on one occasion, Haley might be excused for not making a comparison between the two structures. However, he indicated his one visit to the old structure was enough.

"It had more than served its purposes," he said. "I think the new building is great."

Man sentenced to 30 years in assault case

OSKALOOSA, Kan. (AP) — A 30-year prison sentence was imposed Thursday on Aaron R. Suits, 21, Kansas City, Kan., accused in the Oct. 4 assault of a 22-year-old Olathe woman.

Suits earlier pleaded guilty to charges of aggravated sodomy, rape and aggravated robbery.

The Olathe woman said she picked up the man on the west edge of Shawnee after she mistakenly thought she recognized him.

She was forced to drive to a secluded area near the Perry Reservoir where she said she was raped several times, beaten and slashed with a knife. She said her assailant then drove away in her car.

Suits was arrested Oct. 7 in Wichita when police stopped him for a traffic violation. Police said he was driving the woman's car.

Mizzou faces must game at ISU

Oklahoma, Nebraska put on pressure in Big 8

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Oklahoma and Nebraska, two familiar faces in such situations, could be the only teams with a shot at the Big Eight Conference football championship after Saturday's action.

That's the way it will be if both the third-ranked Sooners and 10th-ranked Nebraska put victories in the record books. Oklahoma, with a 4-0 league mark and undefeated but once tied over-all, plays at home against Cinderella team Kansas, Nebraska, 3-1-1, travels to Kansas State.

Kansas, 18th ranked, is 3-1-1 and would be unbeaten this season except for one-point losses to both Tennessee and Nebraska. Kansas State, 1-4, is staggering under the impact of three consecutive conference biddings.

To remain in the title picture,

14th-ranked Missouri must win at Iowa State, and Oklahoma State must knock off the Buffaloes at Colorado. Missouri is 3-2 and Oklahoma State 1-1-2. Iowa State has lost all five of its conference games, and Colorado has been eliminated with a 2-3 record.

Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma State all hope to receive postseason bowl invitations which could be extended immediately after Saturday's games. The Sooners are ineligible for postseason competition because of probation for recruiting violations.

Sooner Coach Barry Switzer regards the battle with the amazing Jayhawks as "a heart attack game. It's bound to be a heart stopper with David Jaynes standing back there and throwing as many times as he's going to be throwing."

Jaynes has completed 134 of 251 passes for 1,710 yards and 10 touchdowns and leads the conference. The game will feature Jaynes' passing and the running of the Sooners' Joe Washington and Waymon Clark, first and second, respectively, in league rushing.

"It will take a super effort on our part to win," says Kansas Coach Don Fambrough. Coach Tom Osborne of Nebraska is aware that Kansas State "could salvage a lot by beating us. Our concern is that we might be looking past Kansas State to Oklahoma" Nov. 23.

Nebraska's Dave Humm is second only to Jaynes in passing, and I-back Tony Davis is fifth in rushing, two notches below K-State's Isaac Jackson. Missouri Coach Al Onofrio says Iowa State is a "mystery to me. They've lost three games that they should have or could have won."

Oklahoma State, the conference's toughest team to score against, holding their opponents to an average of 11.1 points a game, will be put to the test by Colorado's Charlie Davis, Billy Waddy and Bo Matthews while the Buffs try to harness the wizardry of the Cowboys' quarterback, Brent Blackman.

Bowl fever

MU 10-point favorite over Iowa State

AMES, Iowa (AP)—Missouri will be out to impress the Sun Bowl scouts as the Tigers tangle with Iowa State in Big Eight Conference football wrap-up game Saturday.

Fourteenth-ranked Missouri, 7-2, possesses one of the top defensive squads in the country but the Tigers pretty well lost their chances of winning the Big Eight crown in losing to Oklahoma 31-3 last weekend.

Bowl invitations cannot be extended until after Saturday's game. Sun Bowl officials reportedly were in touch with Missouri Athletic Director Mel Sheehan earlier this week.

Host Iowa State, 2-6, will be battling in the 1:30 p.m. (CST) game to avoid a winless conference season, while Missouri is assured of its best record in four years. Missouri is rated a 10-point favorite.

Iowa State, a loser of three two-point games, has been listed in "Kickoff," a national football publication, as being the team which has had the worst luck in the 1973 season.

The Cyclones suffered their worst defeat of the season last Saturday—a 31-7 setback at the hands of tenth-ranked Nebraska. Quarterback Wayne Stanley and running back Mike Strachan were both sidelined by early game injuries.

ISU Coach Earle Bruce said he hopes Stanley will be available to back up freshman Buddy Hardeman, who substituted for Stanley last Saturday. Strachan will be in the starting lineup.

Bruce said Missouri is a fine defensive football team and "has some talented personnel on offense, headed by tailback Tommy Reamon and quarterback John Cherry."

Missouri Coach Al Onofrio stands 1-1 against the Cyclones in his two years at the Tiger helm, while this will be Bruce's first encounter with Missouri.

The Tigers lead in the series between the two schools—which dates back to 1895—by a 40-19 margin with seven ties. Missouri won a strange 6-5 decision last year at Columbia.

Missouri boasts of being the top punt return and kickoff return team in the Big Eight. The Tigers are averaging 13.4 yards on 17 punt returns and 22.8 yards in 18 kickoff returns.

The Tigers' John Moseley leads the conference in punt returns, averaging 15 yards on 15 punt returns and tops the kickoff returns with a 25.4 average in 14 returns.

Iowa State kicker Tom Goedjen sports a 7.1-points-per-game average to rank second, but his 57 points put him in first place in kick scoring. Greg Hill of Missouri also has 57 points, but he has played one more game than Goedjen.

The Cyclones top the Tigers in passing offense, total offense and scoring offense.

Jaynes tops All-America nominations from Big 8

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Dave Jaynes, the Kansas quarterback, led the list today as 37 Big Eight Conference football players were nominated for the 1973 All-America team.

The nominations were made by a 20-member panel of sports writers and radio and television sportscasters throughout the Big Eight area.

The board generally was lavish in its praise of Jaynes, who leads the conference in passing.

Other players who received many votes in the first canvas of the board were Rod Shoate, Oklahoma linebacker; John Dutton, Nebraska defensive tackle; Joe Washington, Oklahoma back who tops the league in rushing; Brent Blackman, Oklahoma State quarterback; Frosty Anderson, Nebraska split end; Charlie Davis, Colorado tailback; Lucious Selmon, Oklahoma nose guard, and Barry Price, Oklahoma State nose guard.

Board member Hal Brown, sports editor of the Lincoln (Neb.) Star, said Jaynes "has to be the best in the country, and I think folks in the Tennessee area will agree. He shows so much more poise than he has the past two years. Although he didn't have a great day against Nebraska, throwing for only 90 yards, a less than great quarterback would have thrown five interceptions. He threw only one."

Chuck Woodling, sports editor of the Lawrence (Kan.) Journal-World, said Jaynes "not only has the physical tools but has what it takes above the neck. He knows that being a quarterback isn't based solely on having a great arm."

Lucious Selmon's brothers at Oklahoma also were nominated. They are Leroy and Dewey, both defensive tackles.

Besides Brown and Woodling, the board members are Volney Meere of the Daily Oklahoman, Oklahoma City; Bob Hartzell of the Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune; Ron Holt of the Stillwater (Okla.) News-Press; Frank Scott, station KOCO-TV, Oklahoma City; Bob Hentzen of the Topeka (Kan.) Capital-Journal; Bill Hodge of the Wichita Eagle.

Fred White of station WIBW, Topeka, Kan.; Mahlon Albridge, station KRFU, Columbia, Mo.; Del Black of the Kansas City Star; Bob Broeg of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch; Dan Creedon of the Boulder (Colo.) Daily Camera.

Frank Haraway of the Denver Post; Larry Zimmer of station KOA, Denver; Frank Snyder, station WOIT-TV, Ames, Iowa; Buck Turnbull of the Des Moines Register and Tribune; Warren Swain of station KMA, Shenandoah, Iowa; Don Isherwood of Lincoln, Neb.; and Tom Ash of the Omaha World-Herald.

The other nominations: Nebraska — Offensive tackle Daryl White, defensive back Randy Borg, middle guard John Bell, quarterback David Humm.

Kansas — Linebacker Steve Towle, defensive end Don Goode, running back Delvin Williams, defensive end Dean Zook, flanker Kenny Saathoff, defensive tackle Pedro Dillon.

Oklahoma — Split end Tinker Owens, fullback Wayne Clark, defensive end Gary Bacus, safety Randy Hughes.

Missouri — Center Scott Anderson, defensive back John Moseley, offensive tackle Jim Schnietz.

Oklahoma State — Linebacker Cleveland Vann. Colorado — Center William McDonald, fullback Bo Matthews, tight end J. V. Cain.

Kansas State — Halfback Isaac Jackson, tight end Henry Childs, linebacker Greg Jones.

Iowa State — Tight end Keith Kreple, running back Mike Strachan.

Miami (Fla.) could sour possible Sugar Bowl foes

By HOWARD SMITH Associated Press Sports Writer

The Miami Hurricanes won't be at the Orange Bowl on New Year's night unless they pay their way in, but they could have more to do with its success than anyone else.

The Orange Bowl has managed to land college football's biggest attraction the past few seasons but this time around, the Sugar Bowl has apparently stolen the show.

Post-season bids will be officially extended and accepted late Saturday and the Sugar Bowl is expected to walk off with this year's plum — second-ranked Alabama against fifth-ranked Notre Dame — for their New Year's Eve show.

The Orange Bowl will likely get sixth-ranked Penn State and seventh-ranked Louisiana State, a dandy matchup under most circumstances but downright dull when compared to the dream pairing of Bear Bryant's awesome Crimson Tide and Ara Parseghian's powerful Fighting Irish.

That's where Miami, Fla. comes in. The Hurricanes are in a unique position to sour the Sugar Bowl and put the Orange Bowl back on top by knocking off both the Tide and the Irish.

Miami plays Alabama Saturday at Tuscaloosa and meets Notre Dame Dec. 1 in the Orange Bowl, which is the site of all Hurricane home games. Miami will be heavy underdogs both times, but the Hurricanes seem to perform better that way.

The Hurricanes, under new Coach Pete Elliott, are now 5-3 for the year.

Bryant's Alabama team has overpowered eight opponents so far and will be making its final appearance of the season before the home folks. The Crimson Tide will close out the campaign against LSU in Baton Rouge and against Auburn in Birmingham.

Notre Dame is idle Saturday but faces Air Force on Thanksgiving Day.

St. Louis Blues hold off late rally by Pittsburgh

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Pittsburgh Penguins staged a late rally but were unable to overcome an early 4-0 lead by the St. Louis Blues as they suffered a 5-3 defeat Thursday night in St. Louis.

The Blues got off to a quick start with goals from Wayne Merrick, Gary Sabourin and Garry Unger within 2:15 of each other in the first period. Lou Angotti added another at 5:11 of the second period before the Penguins got on track with a goal by Jean Pronovost late in the period.

"Those three quick goals just killed us," said Pittsburgh Coach Ken Schinkel. "That was the game right there. We didn't play that badly after that. But we didn't go into the corners well and sometimes we didn't react fast enough to the puck."

The Penguins tightened the game to 4-2 at 1:31 of the third period on a goal by Al McDonough, but Steve Durbano got that goal back with a low hard shot that beat Penguin goalie Jim Rutherford at 12:25. The Blues needed that goal because Ab De Marco got his skate in the way of a pass from Syl Apps behind the Blues goal and deflected the puck into his own net behind rookie goal tender John Davidson at 15:47. That goal ended the scoring.

"Pittsburgh is the kind of team that really opens up," said Blues Coach Jean Guy Talbot. "We came out skating well, but kind of fell asleep and started playing the way they did. But everyone is working really well together on our club."

The victory lifted the Blues into sole possession of third place in the Western Division over the idle Chicago Blackhawks.

Ben Crenshaw challenges with torrid round of 64

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Suddenly, dramatically, rookie Ben Crenshaw has put himself in position to win an unprecedented second consecutive professional golf title — and this one for the biggest prize the game has ever offered.

The husky, hard-hitting 21-year-old from the University of Texas stampeded past 25 players and into a share of second place with a brilliant, seven-under-par 64 in gusty, swirling winds and now is but six strokes back of struggling leader Tom Watson in the $500,000 World Open Golf Tournament.

"I'm still pretty far back, but at least I'm in contention," Crenshaw said after Thursday's sixth round in this two-week, 144-hole event that offers a record $100,000 to the winner. The tournament ends Saturday.

Aaron pads pocketbook on network television

ATLANTA (AP)—For 19 of his 20 major league baseball seasons, Henry Aaron did his thing in virtual obscurity. Suddenly, that has changed.

Now that Aaron's long, hot summer in pursuit of Babe Ruth's all-time major league record of 714 home runs has ended its 1973 run one short, the Atlanta Braves' superstar has been besieged by personal appearance offers.

And for the 39-year-old native of Mobile, Ala., the change has been abrupt.

Until signing with the William Morris Agency at the close of the baseball season, Aaron had only done a handful of endorsements.

Smithton overpowers Gremlins, 81-38

By BOB SHACKELFORD Staff Sports Writer

LINCOLN — Smithton's Tigers stormed into the finals of the Kaysayers Conference Basketball Tournament here Thursday night by blasting Sedalia Sacred Heart, 81-38.

In consolation semifinal action, Warsaw eased past Stover, 69-56.

The Gremlins proved to be no match for the taller Smithton entry; Coach Tom Beer keyed his first-half defense to stopping the Bengals' high-scoring post-man Rusty Templemire. The strategy worked to a degree, as the Grems held the 6-5 senior to three baskets and three charity tosses.

Marvin Turner, Martin White and Jay Teter took up the scoring slack and Smithton breezed to a 42-13 half time margin. The onslaught continued in the second half.

Balanced scoring told the whole story for Steve Hunter's charges, with 10 players entering the scoring column.

Turner and Teter led all scorers with 17 apiece; Mark Register had nine to lead Sacred Heart in the losing cause.

The Tigers title chances may have been a severe blow, when

'Ruralist' editor is dinner speaker

Farmers and city folk gathered on friendly premises Thursday night at the Ramada Inn for their annual Urban-Rural Dinner.

The guest speaker, Cordell W. Tindall, editor of the Missouri Ruralist, entertained the group of 250 with anecdotes on everything from the fuel shortage, to hog prices and to the quality of rural life.

"We can shoot a rocket to Mars, but we don't have enough (gasoline) to haul the wheat in off the elevators," Tindall said. Tindall asked the group, "Are we for truth in a new era for agriculture?"

He noted the situation for the farmer has seen much improvement in the past year, but he questioned whether that improvement would be lasting. "It's a confusing time," Tindall said, "everybody is confused, even the Secretary of Agriculture (Earl Butz) is confused."

Tindall also mentioned that one of the problems in rural families is that "some of our brightest boys have moved" to cities for other attractive jobs.

"We've been losing the cream of the crop... young people would rather think than work, they'd rather push a button than scoop," he said.

But he added that Sedalia has many advantages for urban and rural growth.

"It seems to me that Sedalia has a better than average future as a farm town — a country town, because it appears to be about the right size to be offering some of the services that are now disappearing in the smaller town," Tindall said.

He also called on his audience to think about "the quality of life — particularly country life."

He said that the peace and quiet of rural life is a commodity that "we farm people have had for so long we take it for granted."

Tindall mentioned the quality of education as a "project we can all get together and work on... to build a better community and put real meaning into rural development."

Keeping in mind that he was speaking to a mixed group of food producers and urban consumers, Tindall did not forget to mention the recent rise in meat costs.

"I feel that we'll (town and country) always be on opposite sides of the fence when it comes to... farm prices," he said. "The housewives here in Sedalia don't want to pay any more for ham and beef than they have to. This is understandable."

"And you ladies should understand that we farmers would like to charge you just as much as we can possibly get away with — as long as you'll eat it," Tindall said.

He said American housewives have been "spoiled by cheap prices" and that it is difficult for them to understand the recent jump in prices.

"But I think you'll get used to it, in time — and then maybe we can be friends again," he concluded.

Prior to Tindall's speech, Tom Burdett, area manager of International Harvester Co., Kansas City, presented farm management awards to Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Holman, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holman, Mr. and Mrs. Roy DeWitt and Mr. and Mrs. Horace Dorman.

Master of ceremonies was Jake Sirgusa, president of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce. The Chamber sponsored this year's urban-rural dinner.

Blames fear for opposition

Housewives are against the Equal Rights Amendment because, "I think, frankly, they have been scared to death," Mrs. Ellen Walters, past president of the Missouri League Of Women Voters, said Thursday night.

"It's partly the women's liberation, which has been looking down on the housewife. While women's liberation supports the ERA, it's a completely different thing," she said to about 25 members of Sedalia and Warrensburg Leagues and a few guests at Maxine's Gourmet House.

"There is nothing in the ERA to prevent a woman from staying at home and taking care of her children full-time if she wants to and if her husband can afford it," Mrs. Walters explained.

At the same time however, "No longer can a woman who is capable of earning or has a private means bleed her husband (in a divorce suit)." Thus, the Equal Rights Amendment will also give some rights to men, she stressed.

Symbols are provided for handicapped

The State Fair Community College Student Government Association has provided the Mid-Missouri Association for the Blind and Physically Handicapped with symbols to help members determine which businesses and stores have aisles wide enough for wheelchair users.

The announcement was made Thursday night when the association met at New Hope Baptist Church. The 100 symbols will be placed on doors of qualifying businesses and consist of a 3-inch by 3-inch wheelchair picture.

It was also reported that the organization will sponsor a turkey shoot at 1 p.m. Sunday at Bob's Campers, South Highway 65.

Mrs. Mary Durley, a representative of the Welfare office here, was a special guest at the meeting.

Harvard University has the largest college library in the U.S. with 8,278,000 books. Yale is second with 5,646,000.

Mrs. Ellen Walters

An active member in the ERA Coalition in Missouri, Mrs. Walters promised: "We're going to try once again (next year) to put Missouri on the list of states who have ratified the ERA."

The amendment to the U.S. Constitution must be ratified by 38 states in seven years to become a part of the constitution. Since 30 states have already ratified, eight more must do so by March, 1979.

"Our slogan is: 'Eight more in '74,'" Mrs. Walters said. Last year the amendment was defeated in committee in the Missouri Legislature. "This meant that 21 of our state senators had no opportunity to hear debate on ERA."

"I am sure there are some that were glad they didn't have the opportunity," Mrs. Walters said.

She reminded the group that the ERA has been supported by the last four presidents, by platforms of the Democratic and Republican parties in the last election, and more recently, by the AFL-CIO.

"I don't mind telling you were were delighted (about the AFL-CIO support)," Mrs. Walters said. She read the AFL-CIO resolution, which concludes that ERA is the "only... means of equality in the workplace that is being denied them (women) because of sex."

To the argument that Missouri doesn't need the Equal Rights Amendment, Mrs. Walters admitted, "Missouri is not in bad shape. Maybe if all states did as well we might not need the amendment. It is true that these (discriminatory laws) are being changed in most states. This is moving slowly. We believe the amendment is needed to undergird this," she said. Under the Civil Rights Act, individual cases must be taken through court to change discriminatory practices.

MFA notes increases

Sales at the Sedalia MFA Exchange have increased by over $1 million in the past year, manager Sam Young revealed at the annual MFA meeting Thursday evening.

More than 175 people listened to Young's report as well as a brief talk by Jim Halsey, general manager of the MFA Livestock Association. Halsey is also vice-president and general manager of Four-Square Market, Marshall Junction.

Also at the meeting, an election of advisory board members and state convention delegates was held. Elected to the advisory board were Ed Schlobohm, Theodore Mergen, C.E. Wells, Harold Blaylock, R.W. Rissler, Harry Runge and Leo Hoehns.

Delegates to the convention, which will be held in Columbia next August, are Larry Claycomb, Don Abney, Sam Hieronymus, Theodore Mergen, Robert Rissler, Ralph Grimes, Lloyd Arnett, John Rissler, Ed Schlobohm, Eldon Leiter, C.E. Wells, Harold Blaylock, Harry Runge, Leo Hoehns and Robert J. Young.

Alternates are Leland Harsch, Everett Billings, Dale Monsees, Marvin May, Cloyce Wilson, Rudy Rehmer, Jon Runge, Dale Dirck, Orin Chappell, Tom Chamberlin, Charles Ream, George Harvey, Leslie Powell, Ralph Lee and Everett Keele.

Young said the Exchange has realized a general increase in all parts of its operation since last year and noted that in only the first 2½ months of this fiscal year, the Exchange has shown over a $1 million rise in sales. He noted sales totaling $2,695,010 during the 1972-73 fiscal year, which ended Aug. 31.

Young stated that some of the increase could be attributed to price increases but that large real increase has also been noticed. He explained that additional personnel were used during the year, but even that measure failed to completely deal with the increased volume of business.

Young predicted that being in a farm cooperative will pay even more in the future.

Halsey spoke of the changes which have taken place in the field of agriculture since the formation of the MFA 59 years ago. He stated that the need for such an organization is far greater today than it was then, explaining that a farmer was more nearly self-sufficient in the past.

Halsey cited the facts that farmers' production capabilities have increased greatly and that farmers now purchase almost all of their production inputs. He also noted that in other fields, production is now accomplished by organizations such as corporations and labor unions.

Halsey commented on some problems farmers now face. Shortages of such things as gasoline and fuel oil, fertilizer and farm equipment were mentioned.

The lessening of competition in the meat processing industry is one of the problems livestock producers face, Halsey said. He also warned of increasing tendencies for big business to move into the farming industry, noting the massive start-to-finish hog operation now being built near Hannibal.

Robert A. Cinader

Special outlook insures success

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Robert A. Cinader is one of TV's more successful men. Maybe it's because he has a peculiarly down-to-earth view of what TV is and should be.

Cinader created Adam-12, produces the solid hit, Emergency!, and the new NBC entry, Chase. He has many theories about television but perhaps his guiding principle is that TV programs should be about people and that the stories it tells are really secondary.

"My favorite show of all time," he says, "was Phil Silvers' Bilko series. I doubt that I can remember three stories but I do remember all the characters. They were like family to me."

And so, when he sets out to create a show he tries to build a solid foundation of characters the public will come to know and, hopefully, to love.

"You don't remember TV stories," he says, "but you do remember the people."

Another Cinader theory is this: "TV shouldn't be measured in terms of whether it is good or bad but whether or not it is entertaining."

He feels that the old criteria — good vs. bad — were OK for movies or plays or books. That was when criticism meant something because the public was guided by critics and went to a movie or play or bought a book depending on what the critics said about it. But TV is on tonight and gone forever (barring a summer rerun) so critics don't count, he feels.

"The average TV viewer," he says, "doesn't want mind-blowing shows. All he wants is to spend a relaxed hour with his friends on the screen. It's a new, easy way to have social intercourse — it's easier to turn on the TV set and have Robert Young in than it is to invite real people in and have to serve them tea and cookies and then clean the house afterwards."

He produces his shows with those theories in mind. And he also keeps a close eye on his time slot and, thus, his potential audience. With Emergency! for example he knows it is up against All in the Family and he figured that CBS show would attract the adult viewers. So he placed emphasis on the firemen, rather than the doctors, in his cast, and therefore has built a show that appeals to young people.

Chase, his new one, is another matter. He says he realizes it is not yet a good show. He wants to change the emphasis from straight crime and the solving of crime to more fun.

More for Less . . .

If you are interested in more than cheaply priced, cheaply made carpets and are looking for carpets that are manufactured to high durability standards, made a little more attractive with extra emphasis on design and color, then Hobsons have your carpet. If you would enjoy shopping for carpet in a store that features professionally designed displays to make your selection easier, such as the 22 carpeted model rooms in our Clinton store, to the array of eight-foot vertical and horizontal carpeted displays in our Sedalia store, if you would enjoy shopping from a vast selection of Brand Name carpetings; and if you want the most competitive prices in the retail carpet business . . . then Hobsons is your store

One of the "SELECT DOZEN" $8.99 SQ. YD.

A rich 3 toned Wilton textured carpet you can live with in a carefree manner for years. Extravagantly heavier than most . . . and only Hobsons have it!
